Three Outstanding Women Will Receive Honorary Degrees on May 10 at Seton

Sister Rosalie Bertell

Marie Hamilton

Ruth Goldbloom

Three outstanding women will receive honorary doctor of humane letters degrees from Mount Saint Vincent University on May 10—Sister Rosalie Bertell, Marie Hamilton and Ruth Goldbloom.

Sister Bertell, G.N.S.H., B.A., M.A., Ph.D. is currently Director of Research for the International Institute of Concern for Public Health in Toronto, and is one of the founding commissioners of the International Medical Commission based in Geneva, which will work with health professionals to secure human rights for all peoples. She is a member of the Order of Grey Nuns of the Sacred Heart and a peace activist.

Her research into the environmental causes of leukemia in the United States led her to an understanding of what radiation does to the human body and she is considered an expert on the effects of low-level radiation.

Sister Bertell has acted as consultant for many agencies including the National Council of Churches, the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

Dr. Bertell will address the morning Convocation ceremony.

Also receiving her honorary degree at the morning ceremony will be Marie Hamilton, who has been throughout her life a role model, a facilitator and a support to women in Halifax County.

She has worked toward the overall social improvement of the community, placing particular emphasis on education.

In 1983 she received the Persons Award from the Governor General of Canada. She is an executive member of Canada's national Anti-Poverty Organization, the Congress of Black Women of Nova Scotia and the Beechville Baptist Church.

Addressing the afternoon Convocation will be Ruth Goldbloom, Dip. P.E., who has been actively involved in the life of Mount Saint Vincent University for more than a decade, acting as a member and

What Does Security Mean To Women?

What Does Security Mean to Women? and How Does the Arms Race Affect Women? are two of the major workshops which will be held at Mount Saint Vincent University during the June 5-9 Women's International Peace Conference.

Sponsored by 63 Canadian institutions, more than 200 women from 22 countries are expected to attend including women from China, USSR, India, South America and the United States.

Twenty-five women from visible minorities will also attend the four-day conference.

—Current Status—

Apart from defining "true security", the conference is expected to analyse the current status of international negotiations, trace the links between all forms of violence and the threat of war; and share skills, experiences and ideas on alternative ways to resolve conflict and build trust.

Conference organizer Marion Kerans also hopes to explore how the application of these alternatives could reduce present levels of hostility and promote ways to transfer global resources from arms to development.

She says the conference will bring women together from all over the world to discuss alternatives to negotiating peace and help improve communications and nurture a lasting trust based on humane, rather than economic, values.

—Very Strong—

Planning for the conference has been underway for almost a year with offices located on the Mount campus.

Sixty Years Of Memories . . .

by Ruth Jeppesen

"From the beginning, Mount Saint Vincent College offered degrees in three fields well suited to woman's taste, ability and ambition. All her early graduates are Bachelors of Arts, Bachelors of Secretarial Science and Bachelors of Music.

Very soon, however, the distinctly feminine department of Household Science was added to the curriculum; and later, during our own collegiate years, the school has known an unusual period of educational expansion. Now, she prepares those who wish to become women of the pen, whether in the religious life or in the world, by courses in journalism that are at once practical and theoretical.

She instructs those who desire the career of librarians in the knowledge and scientific care of books.

She equips others to go forth and better existing conditions by the social service they render; and she trains many of her post-graduates to enter the classroom as fully qualified teachers."

EDITORIAL

It's been exactly eight months since the last issue of Insight Plus (although I received a letter recently from an alumna living in a far-away country who wrote she just received hers and enjoyed its content).

Unfortunately, restraints on economic and human resources being what they are, we have been unable to sustain publication. That one July issue was sent to 10,000 Mount supporters at a cost of $12,342 (the alumnae association contributed $2,100). Labelling, bundling and postage alone cost $3,040.

Without further resources available and after much resistance, pain and soul searching alumnae and university administrators agreed that The Connection, issued by the university's public relations office 19 times during the year, will devote four issues to alumnae news with a smattering of university information mixed in. It is felt we will be able to stay in line with existing budgets for now and still serve the interests of alumnae and the university.

A little bit about The Connection might be in order. It was first published in September, 1981, with resources permitting 15 four-page issues a year. This continued until the Fall of 1984 when it was increased to eight pages and its base broadened to better reflect university activities and interests. A run of 2,000 serves our needs.

Apart from being a useful tool to improve internal communications, it is also sent to government leaders at all levels, government offices, other universities across Canada, to the Sisters of Charity Motherhouse and to the local, regional, and national media.

Right from the first issue Alumnae Update has been a regular column. Designed to increase alumnae awareness on campus it has also served as a bulletin board for upcoming alumnae activities.

Alumnae representatives feel the months of April, July, September and February will best serve their needs and so, as long as the funds hold out, look for The Connection in the mail four times on a regular basis and let us hear from you. It seems the sensible thing to do.

Best regards,
Dulcie Conrad

OUTSTANDING WOMEN

chair of its Board of Governors and chair of the university's first major fund-raising campaign, Project One: Futures for Women.

Her numerous other volunteer commitments currently include being director of the Voluntary Planning Association; chairperson of the Youth Aliyah, Halifax Hadassah Wizo; the first woman to be appointed chairperson of the United Jewish Appeal and the first woman director on the board of Simpsons Limited.

Long-time friends of the late Mary Dee Girroir, (1 to r) Sister Patricia Mullins, Sister Margaret Young and Norma Marriott, admire the grand piano which is now back to original 1925 condition.

Girroir Piano Back and Scholarship Ready To Go

The university's magnificent grand piano—a donation by the late Mary Dee Girroir (Class of 1935)—is back on campus after undergoing a refurbishing the likes of which it has never known in its 60 years of life.

It took $4,200 to put it back in mint condition and thanks to donations from the Mount's alumnae association, faculty association, staff association, student council, Mount Playhouse and university the piano is now ready for proper use.

Speaking of Mary Dee Girroir, alumnae will be interested to know that the alumnae association has contributed the final amount required to bring the scholarship established in her honor by her friends up to the $6,000 criterion set by the university several years ago so that it now may be awarded when the university's scholarship committee meets again in June.

The successful candidate must be a second-year Mount student "whose academic performance is characterized by excellence in grades with participation in the cultural life of the community, preferably in the field of music."

Interested applicants should enquire at the Alumnae Office, Room 215, Evaristus Hall by May 31st.

Appointment To Be Made For Chair In Women's Studies

The end of this month should see the appointment to the Mount's Chair of Women's Studies—the first in Canada. According to Dr. Susan Clark, chair of the presidential committee appointed last year to seek out worthy candidates for the position, the short list has already been compiled and it contains some impressive names.

"We have had some excellent applications and nominations from all across Canada. All we have to do now is make the selection and this should be done shortly," she said.

It's been a year since the Mount was awarded $500,000 for the establishment of the first Chair of Women's Studies in Canada. In making the announcement the Hon. Judy Erola, federal minister responsible for the status of women at the time, said government felt such action would help provide "greater educational opportunities for women".

She said it would also help Canada meet its commitment to the United Nations convention on the elimination of all forms of discrimination against women.

The Endowment of Chairs of Women's Studies program, which promotes scholarly research on women's issues, called for the creation of one chair per year for five consecutive years to be located in five regions of the country. Recently, the second chair was announced for the universities of Manitoba and Winnipeg.

Apart from Dr. Clark, those serving on the search committee are: Dr. Frances Early, Sister Patricia Mullins (Dean of Humanities and Sciences), Dr. Pierre Payer, Asst. Professor Deborah Poff, Dr. Rosemarie Sampson and Mary Moore Uhl (Finance and Planning Assistant to the President).

New Alumnae Branch Set Up

The Halifax Metro Area Branch of the Mount Saint Vincent Alumnae Association got off and running recently with the holding of its first organizational meeting and election of officers.

Ducksie Stoddard ('68) was elected president and Marilyn Hutchings ('69) as vice-president. Rachel Martin ('79) and Gail Matthews ('83) were elected as treasurer and secretary respectively.

It had long been a concern of the association that the majority of its activities were located in Halifax where most of the decisions were made. "Our membership across the country and around the world was not part of the decision-making process" wrote association president Debbie Pottie Matheson to alumnae in February.

Barbara Watt, past association president and now chair of its branch development committee, felt that the elevation of the alumnae board to national status addressed this concern and opened the door to the formation of a Halifax Metro Area Branch.

New directions for the alumnae board, they said, would provide a forum for a larger representation of the association to participate in alumnae affairs and would also encourage the growth and development of the association through the establishment of local branches in major cities across the country.

Both Sister Paule Cantin and Dr. E.M. Fulton attended the inaugural meeting bringing greetings from the Sisters of Charity and from the university's board of governors.

Those who have received degrees or diplomas from the university or who graduated from the Mount Saint Vincent Academy are entitled to membership in the new branch along with those who attended the university for one full year (five credits) either as a traditional or continuing education student.

Honorary degree recipients who reside in the Halifax environs are also eligible for membership as are those who held membership in the association in May of 1977.

NOTICE

This is the Mount's 60th year as a degree-granting institution.

Keeping financial constraints in mind, university planners are taking advantage of on-going activities by placing a special emphasis on the diamond jubilee anniversary.

The high point will occur during the holding of a special Convocation October 20 and there has been some talk that the alumnae association may sponsor a gala ball.

Profile

A chauvinistic remark made by a male high school teacher stiffened Kristen Earley's resolve to study chemistry. "Girls don't belong in chemistry," he told her when she expressed interest in the subject. "I was so angry with his attitude," Earley says, "that I made up my mind to go ahead in spite of him."

When she came to the Mount in 1978, she continued with her chosen subject and four years later was awarded a B.Sc with Distinction.

Earley remembers with gratitude the help she received at the Mount, particularly from Sr. Patricia Mullins, Dean of Humanities and Sciences, and Dr. Charlie Edmunds, of the Math Department.

"They always told me, 'Come and get help if you don't understand,'" she says. "It was at the Mount that I learned to ask questions."

She was a gifted student—so much so that Dr. Edmunds made special arrangements for her to take all her courses at Dalhousie University in her fourth year so that she would be able to enter the Technical University of Nova Scotia as a chemical engineering student after graduating from the Mount. At the TUNS 1984 Convocation, she received her diploma of Bachelor of Engineering in Chemical Engineering, one of five women in a class of 25.

Earley, who went to high school in her home state of Connecticut, USA, came to the Mount as part of a family tradition. "My mother, my great-aunt and my cousin all went to the Mount," she explains. "I'm the eldest of four girls and it was expected that one of us would go there."

Earley's mother, Claudine Mersereau, is a Mount alumna who graduated from the Academy in 1957.

Her great-aunt is Eileen Mullins, who graduated with a B.A. in 1935, and her daughter, Margaret Mersereau, graduated from the Mount with a B.A. in 1971.

Kristen now works with General Motors in St. Catherine's, Ontario, on pollution emission. Last summer she took off with classmate Angela Dennis for a six-week bicycle tour in Europe.

Only three in her engineering graduating class had jobs to go to following Convocation, and two of them were women, Kristen and her friend.

Ergonomics

A one-day workshop on "ergonomics", looking at the basic people/machine environment relationships in the workplace and promoting the health of the worker through application of sound principles, will be held at Mount Saint Vincent University May 4.

Co-sponsored by the Mount's Centre for Continuing Education and the Atlantic Foundation for Occupational Health and Safety, this workshop should be of benefit to anyone interested in health and safety in the workplace.

Preregistration is required before May 1. For further details, call The Centre for Continuing Education.

A Theme Song For the 60th

The Mount's 60th anniversary theme song "Keep on Searching" won a standing ovation for Halifax musician Sandy Greenberg at its Awards Banquet premiere performance Saturday night.

Commissioned by the university's public relations director, Dulcie Conrad, the song has a catchy chorus and many in the packed room chimed in to sing along with Greenberg.

According to Conrad it took about a week to get all the necessary approvals in place once Greenberg had told her the song was finished. She said she had approached a couple of musicians in January, hoping there may be something ready for the Women's Day Rally.

"I was a bit cautious about this because I wasn't sure it could be done. Once I heard the tune and the words I knew there were possibilities," said Conrad.

The next step was to pull in some key people like Sister Margaret Young and Mary Moore Uhl to give a listen and make some suggestions. Very few changes were necessary and with one final touch made by Sister Evelyn Williams and approval by Dr. E.M. Fulton and banquet chair Alice Sandall, all systems were go.

"Dr. Fulton volunteered to give up her allotted time for speaking to introduce the song and everything fell into place after that."

Greenberg is no stranger to the Mount. She has performed here many times (including the Women's Day Rally). Cheryl Gaudet, who accompanied Greenberg Saturday night, is on campus every week working with other Mount musicians. A former student, she too is an accomplished musician.

It's been suggested that the jubilee theme song could be used for various events during the rest of the 1985 celebration and there has been some talk that it may be used at Convocation.

"However, these are matters which have to be decided upon and worked out. The Mount has a long tradition for music and it seems to me that our own theme song with lyrics which have meaning to our particular university is kind of a happy event," said Conrad.

She said she wanted to thank all those "who came at such short notice" to listen and make suggestions, and Sandy Greenberg for making it happen.

Library: Evaluation Ongoing

A recent survey of faculty, students and staff has shown that many people are unaware of Mount library services, and many suggestions were made for improvements to current services and resources.

This year, for the first time, questionnaires were specifically designed and distributed to faculty, as well as a separate questionnaire distributed in the student newspaper, The Picaro. In previous years, questionnaires were distributed only to people who had actually visited the library.

The annual survey was done by the Library Committee of Senate, chaired by Home Economics assistant professor Dr. Susan Whiting.

Dr. Whiting said final results of the survey were not available yet, but initial perusal of comments from respondents showed that generally, faculty wanted more resources in the library and students wanted more help in knowing how to use it and more information on what resources were available.

Many areas were covered, from lighting and ventilation, to availability of specific periodicals and materials for various subject areas.

One of the questions on the faculty questionnaire was whether students were referred to the Mount library or if they were directed to go to Dalhousie University or other libraries in the city.

Dr. Whiting said all results of the survey would be tabulated and comments from the faculty questionnaire would be forwarded to the library co-ordinator of each department in the Fall.

"Many of the suggestions can be easily implemented without a great deal of money. Others will be considered in light of budgets available," she said. "But the important thing is that each member of the Mount community should know s/he has a voice and we hope this evaluation of library services will be an ongoing process."

Results of the survey will be considered by the committee in the planning of the proposed new library for the Mount.

Alumnae Awards

Awards were presented at the Annual Student Union, Alumnae and Athletics Banquet to the following:

Sister Marie Agnes White English Award—Carolyn Oxner; Sister Francis d'Assisi History Award—Ena Butt; Sister Rose Celestine French Award—Susan Lowe; Maude Crouse Robar Biology Award—Desiree Ward; Whitman Trophy for Basketball—Cathy Hodgson; Cecilia MacDonald Trophy for Volleyball—Jackie Coyle; and Alumnae-Student Union Leadership Award—Frank DeMont.

The alumnae association is pleased to recognize the excellence displayed by these students, and extends warm congratulations to all.

Alumnae Update

by Dilly MacFarlane

With Convocation just around the corner, the alumnae association is swinging into gear with a number of activities designed by alumnae to make Grad Week '85 a truly memorable one for the close to 500 potential graduates of the Class of '85.

Association president, Debbie Pottie Matheson is encouraging active participation in these alumnae-sponsored events because, as she says, "Grad Week is really the culmination of a long three or four year process of acquainting current students with the role of alumnae in the university community".

The association begins to promote student-alumnae liaison even before the student arrives on campus "through our cooperation with the Admissions Office," says Matheson, "the alumnae begin to make themselves known to prospective students while they are still in high schools all across the country".

Over the past few years, the association has made a concerted effort to provide special activities for students right from orientation week in the Fall of their freshman year through to playing a major role in Grad Week festivities.

Alumnae sponsored activities during Grad Week '85 include:

Saturday, May 4—alumnae will be operating the Multi-Purpose Room at Rosaria Centre for the Grad Ball Saturday evening. VOLUNTEERS NEEDED!

—At the Grad Ball, a toast will be proposed by the alumnae to the Class of '85, officially welcoming them to the ranks of alumnae.

Tuesday, May 7—1 p.m. Traditional tree planting ceremony and sealing of the time capsule provided by alumnae. Alumnae planters' punch reception will follow.

Wednesday, May 8—3 to 5 p.m. The traditional yellow rose ceremony will be followed by a reception for all new Home Economics graduates and alumnae.

Thursday, May 9—4 p.m. Baccalaureate Mass at the Motherhouse Chapel, followed by a grand reception hosted by the alumnae association in the Motherhouse.

Friday, May 10—Convocation ceremonies at 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. by invitation only. All alumnae are welcome to attend receptions following in Rosaria Centre.

If you plan to participate in any of these activities, please notify the Alumnae Office at 443-4450.

Senior class presidents for 1985, Nancy Moar and Valerie Eddy are encouraged by enthusiasm shown for this year's program. "We are really looking forward to becoming alumnae", says Moar. "It's great to think that after we leave the Mount, we will be joining a family of more than 8,000 members", says Eddy.

RUN FOR LIGHT/COURSE LUMIERE

"Everyone is blind in the dark" is a premise on which the Run For Light is based, a non-competitive five-kilometer fun run held at night, with participants carrying fluorescent lightsticks.

This year's Run For Light, sponsored by Farmers Co-operative Dairy and hosted by Blind Sport Nova Scotia, will start at 9 p.m. Sunday, May 26 at the Tower Road entrance of Point Pleasant Park.

As part of a Canada-wide effort to highlight sports activities for visually impaired and to raise money for Blind Sport Nova Scotia, the run is open to anyone who can walk, jog or run. Families are particularly encouraged to participate.

Registration is possible after May 4, at the Halifax or Dartmouth YM/YWCA, Dalplex, Bedford Recreation Centre or at the start line before the run. The fee of $5 includes the lightstick. T-shirts will be available for an additional cost of $3 for adults and $2 for children.

It's a tradition for the valedictorian to look back in the history of the Mount for inspiration for its new graduates.

There are many other aspects of Grad Week—to be held May 4-10 this year—that are steeped in tradition.

For instance, Sister Francis d'Assisi says the daisy chain was a great occasion, and there are photographs on the walls of Rosaria Centre showing the great lengths of daisies and greens (artificial, when the Commencement was held earlier in the year), which the sophomores made and used to circle the graduates.

Sister Francis says when they had the daisy chain finished, they circled the graduates and proceeded to the traditional planting of a tree somewhere on campus. And that has been a part of Commencement or Grad Week, off and on throughout the college's history.

The Baccalaureate Mass has also been a very important part of the Grad Week activities, usually held the day before Convocation.

Records of a harbour cruise for graduates go back at least 40 years, with a picnic sponsored by freshmen being another highlight for many years.

The 1953 picnic, held at White's Lake, obviously gave some of the organizers reason to note (in a handbook found in the university archives) that "it is well to be careful of sunburns, especially if the picnic is very close to Convocation!"

Research Grants Are Up By 172 and 229 Per Cent

As a result of its spring competition, the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council of Canada has announced the award of grants totalling $252,839 to the Mount in its operating, equipment and general research grant categories.

In the Department of Biology, Dr. Terry Kenny-Mobbs was awarded $60,000 over three years for her work on commitment and differentiation of vertebrate skeletal muscle; Dr. Christopher Lucarotti received $67,623 over three years to study chytridiomycete pathogens of mosquitoes and blackflies; Dr. Barbara Rao was granted $25,922 over two years for her project entitled "The role of membrane lipids in opiate receptors-effectors in cultured neuroblastoma cells"; and Dr. Lillian Wainwright received $29,916 over three years to study the significance of cyclic changes in chick pineal phosphoinositide composition.

In addition, Drs. Kenny-Mobbs and Lucarotti received equipments grants of $35,100 and $33,566 respectively for ultramicrotomy and light microscopic facilities.

In the Department of Chemistry, Dr. Robert McDonald received the second installment of $8,166 of a three-year grant to investigate the kinetics and equilibrium of organic reactions involving thiols.

Dr. Susan Whiting, of the Department of Home Economics, received the third installment of $11,130 of a three-year grant for studies on the mechanism of high protein-induced hypercalciuria.

In the Department of Mathematics, Dr. Frank Bennett was awarded $22,200 over three years to study the spectrum of certain classes of combinatorial designs, Latin squares and quasigroups; Dr. Charles Edmunds received $19,530 for his project, equations over groups; Dr. David Lever was granted $18,900 over three years for his work on relative topology and Dr. John Sayre received the final installment of $2,573 of a three-year grant for a study of generalized Hausdorff matrices.

Dr. Fred Harrington, of the Department of Psychology, was awarded a three-year grant of $24,015 to study the structure and function of elk (cervus elaphus) rutting vocalizations. Dr. Barbara Hodkin received $7,200, the second installment of a three-year grant for analysis of class-inclusion research based on a theoretical model of performance.

In addition, Dr. Harrington received an equipment grant of $26,975 for a digital sonograph for the analysis of human and animal vocalizations.

Finally, the general research grant awarded to the president and allocated on the recommendation of the Committee on Research and Publications was $34,400.

These figures represent an increase of 172 per cent in the operating and equipment grant categories and 229 per cent in the general research grant.

At The Gallery

Paintings by Canadian artist Pegi Nicol MacLeod (1904-1949) and "Samplers: A New Way of Seeing", by Leslie Sampson, Halifax are two new exhibits at Mount Saint Vincent University Art Gallery, until May 5.

MacLeod's living images of the contemporary world helped form the first wave of Canadian modernism.

Leslie Sampson's work uses the conventional needlework sampler format to introduce feminist issues and social concerns.

Halifax to Hong Kong -- Co-operative education work opportunities have increased this Spring with applications to the many placements flooding the department's office. To keep pace, new postings (outside the co-operative education department office) have been increased from once to twice a week (Mondays and Wednesdays), and administrators expect to place 40 - 50 Mount students in prime four-month work experience environments all across Canada and as far away as Hong Kong. Dalhousie University students are being placed through the Mount office as well.

Letter To The Editor

I would like to extend my deepest appreciation to all my friends and co-workers at Mount Saint Vincent University. Your kindness during my family's recent loss has been of more comfort to me than you could possibly imagine. Your cards, Masses, and donations are gratefully received and your calls and visits provided an avenue for venting anger and frustration. I love my father a great deal and I accept your condolences as a tribute to a man who was and is very much loved and who will be very sorely missed. Thank you again.

"Vulnerable Mothers" Follow-Up

Mount Saint Vincent University's Institute for the Study of Women has been awarded a contract to design the follow-up phase of the "Vulnerable Mothers, Vulnerable Children" study undertaken by Nova Scotia's Department of Social Services.

Published in 1981, the study was considered the most comprehensive ever undertaken in Canada on the subject of unmarried mothers and their children.

During a three year period, researchers examined and compared the lives of unmarried mothers who kept their children with a group of married mothers.

Social Services Minister Edmund Morris said it was the intent of the follow-up study to contact these same mothers again to determine how they and their children had managed since they were first interviewed.

Continuation of research on unmarried mothers "is part of the department's efforts to understand the needs of and to assist unmarried mothers and their children," Morris said.

In September 1983, following public appraisal of and response to "Vulnerable Mothers, Vulnerable Children", changes to family benefits legislation were introduced. This provided for a program of training support and rehabilitation for single parents and increased family and related responsibility for unwed teenagers.

Stamps To Mark End Of The Decade Of Women -Casgrain, Murphy

The Decade of Women, proclaimed by the United Nations to eliminate discrimination against women, will end in 1985. Canada has made some progress in enhancing the status of women, particularly at the constitutional level. Section 15 of the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, which enshrines equality rights, will come into effect on April 17, 1985.

This milestone is a monument to the work of such Canadian women as Therese Casgrain and Emily Murphy, both of whom are commemorated on postage stamps in this final year of the decade.

The late Senator Casgrain was awarded an honorary degree by the

Since that time, 1,038 mothers have been assisted with training under the rehabilitation program for single parents.

Mount president, Dr. Margaret Fulton said the university was "absolutely delighted" its Institute for the Study of Women had been chosen to carry out the further phase of study of unmarried mothers.

Established in 1982, the objectives of the institute were twofold, she said, "to improve the life of women and to promote the equality of women with men through a fuller and more informed understanding of the role of women in Canadian society in the past, the present and the future."

Other research related to women undertaken by the institute included the impact of technology on women and their work in offices, women in politics, and part-time work in the Maritimes.

In announcing the follow-up study, Morris praised the co-operation of the Welfare Grants Directorate of the federal department of health and welfare in making funds available. Such costly major research could not likely be undertaken without the support of the federal government, he said.

The design phase for the follow-up study begins immediately and will be completed in September. Morris hoped federal funding would be available thereafter for further detailed research.

Mount in 1977. She founded the League for Women's Rights in 1920 and in 1940 won the right for Quebec women to vote.

Emily Murphy was appointed judge of the Edmonton Women's Court in 1916 thus becoming the first woman magistrate in the British Empire. However, a British common law ruling stated that women were persons in matters of pains and penalties, not in matters of rights and privileges. The Alberta Supreme Court, nevertheless, upheld her judicial authority. Later, Murphy and four other feminists requested a clarification of the law and won the subsequent court action better known as the "Persons Case" in 1929.

Every women's group in Canada has been approached to help sponsor the event and to date more than 63 organizations responded making for very strong "coalition".

The need for the conference, according to Kerans, was because traditionally, women have been excluded from the process of presenting serious alternatives to the narrow, militaristic view of security, even though women comprise 51 per cent of the world's population and 70 per cent of its workers for peace and social justice."

"This is manifestly not fair and it is a problem women have to address," she says.

The characteristics attributed to women of "compassion and co-operation" are important human qualities and essential for successful negotiations at any level, she says.

Information on the international peace conference can be obtained by writing to: Women's Alternatives For Negotiating Peace Conference, Mount Saint Vincent University, Halifax, N.S. B3M 2J6.
