Men look forward to Mount accommodations

by Happy Daze

Next fall men at the Mount can look forward to housing that is as close to the campus as you can possibly get.

Bow Valley has decided to donate one of its defunct oil rigs for use as a male residence.

There will be 350 rooms, a chapel, a cinema, a gym and a cafeteria. The new residence will be called Bow Rig for Boys.

Mount men will be able to buy a meal-card plan with 38 meals per week (sorry no snacking) or a 40-meal card for the low, low price of $140.

There will be a rubber dingy just off the rig's side so that men can row the 10 feet to the railroad tracks beside the Bedford Highway.

The men are being advised to plan their schedules so they begin later in the day since VIA Rail is very busy in the mornings. VIA officials are concerned because they would not want their schedules interrupted by five minutes (the time it takes to rid a train of a body), should there be any accidents.

Care Less, a VIA Rail driver, explains, "I don't care later in the afternoon because it's not so hectic. Besides, then it's only a matter of hours before I'm off anyway."

Men are warned—there is a strict policy of no women in the rooms. Any man who disobeys this rule will be asked to escort their date off the rig, after which they will be thrown overboard for a swim.

There will be entertainment rooms or dating rooms set aside for social purposes. They will have a special antique decor with furniture supplied by Sisters of Charity from the Mount.

Peter Murtagh, CFS representative, said: "I can't wait to move in. It should be a good place to study and there's more opportunity to sail in the basin than at Williams Lake."

Alex Dowelle, a first-year BBA student, commented: "What a great place. Just think of all the money I could make from the World Series and the Superbowl."

The new residence is now accepting applications at the Housing/Financial Aid office at the Mount while supplies last.

Hersom cover uncovered

by Stick Thin

Campus officials and students are in a state of shock following the RCMP announcement that MSVU President, Dr. Naomi Hersom, is really Dr. Margaret Fulton in disguise.

"Fulton never really left," said staff sergeant Bud Knife, "she kidnapped the real Dr. Hersom and went into disguise".

While administration is at a loss to explain Fulton's behaviour, Nova Scotia Hospital director Dr. Benjamin Spock says that Fulton is a victim of job-loss syndrome.

"She is obviously obsessed with staying on as president," says Spock. "Her behaviour is very irrational."

The real Hersom's whereabouts is as yet unknown.

While RCMP officers have interrogated Fulton, she refuses to crack. "Go fly a kite," she said.

Until matters are straightened out, the university board of governors has appointed Student Union president Susan Smith as the new interim university president.

Already, Smith has announced drastic budget cuts. "Electricity will be cut off in Seton on Tuesdays and Thursdays," says Smith, "as we have to reduce the power bill".

Students are advised to bring candles and dress warmly.

Following Smith's appointment, a rash of resignations, from university bookkeeper to public relations officer, have resulted.

"It's like council all over again," says student councillor Garfield Hiscock from under a table at Vinnies.

Smith could not be reached for comment.

Council has gone where no man has gone before

by Saul Hackit

Paramount Studios today announced that student council is in fact the cast of Star Trek.

Said Susan "James T. Kirk" Smith, "This whole Trekkie thing is just a big media con-job, an early project undertaken in the darkened laboratories of the MSVU PR department." Janice "Dr. Leonard McKoy" Pisko adds that now the secret is out, it makes the budget problem that much easier to explain. "I'm a doctor, not a miracle worker," reiterates Pisko.

Wendy "Chekov" Kinney and Jan "Sulu" Thomas were able to candidly discuss their long years of posing as female councillors. "Guys!", they said in unison to music, "You wouldn't believe the goings-on at the women's residence. They regularly bring in half-naked bunnies to dance for their carnal pleasures."

Outside observers concede that this was not entirely unexpected. "Look at the way they spend money on things that don't work. It's the jammed phaser syndrome all over again," says one student.

Garfield "Scotty" Hiscock just can't give up his malicious habit of lying about how much power the council chamber interstellar time warp could take. Or have you ever wondered why Susan "Kirk" Smith insisted on sending herself and Melissa "Spock" Sparks to the most dangerous planet surfaces where their certain deaths will most certainly impede councils ability to function, asked the same student.

"All I can say is thank God this Trekkie thing is confined to council," said Shelley "Uhura" Mursey.

Ducks try to ruffle Reagan's feathers

by Billy Freestyle

In a move to oppose US president Ronald Reagan's policy towards Nicaragua, MSVU ducks will remain at the university for the winter season, said Harold Mallard, leader of the American Ducks Against Reagan Coalition (ADARC) yesterday.

"By remaining in Canada we are sending the message to every American that US meddling in the affairs of another country is wrong and must be stopped," said Mallard, leader of the group of Mallards, Teals and Mud Hens.

The US government has approved $300 million in aid for the Contra rebels who are trying to overthrow the elected Sandinista government of Nicaragua.

President Reagan's reaction to the ADARC announcement was one of disbelief. "I cannot believe that a small group of ducks think that by not flying south for the winter the American people will rise up and join in their protest against my government's policy," he said.

Mr. Fix-it, Mount groundskeeper, said that arrangements are being made to heat the northwest end of the Birch's pond to keep it ice-free for the winter months.

A fund is being collected by local environmentalists to aid in building a house and providing food and blankets for the ducks.

"These noble ducks should be praised for their actions," said May I Help, director of Tools For Peace Halifax. "They are a small group united by a common

Murmur on the Mount

'Twas Christmas eve at the Picaro
The place was cold and drear,
Alcoholic Marina G.
Sucked back another beer

Alex wheezed a dirty laugh
and lit another weed,
He was busy counting money to satisfy his need

Scott played with his basketball
He tried to cause a scene,
The others just ignored him
So, "Look at me," he screamed

Katrina took it all in stride
Phone dangling from her ear,
As she spoke to Lenny Landscaper
Whom she holds so dear

Steve the comic of the group
Gave vent to creative urge,
The walls are brutal testimony
To his graphic purge.

Good ol' Rob jumped round and round
The big old office desk,
We wish he'd type another page
But all he wants is sex

Jeff typed out another scoop
On sports he's really keen,
He hopes that one day very soon
His sports page will be seen

Cindy called attention to
The immediate task at hand,
"We've got to keep on working,
Sicaros are in demand."

But as Paul and Bill were looking out
Into the star-filled night,
Old Saint Pic went flying by
And gave them quite a fright

They heard him yell and wish them well
As he rode out of sight,
"Merry Sicaro," he yelled to them
"And to all a good, good night,"

Until next year . . .

Letters to the editor

A Smuppy barks back

Dear Editor,

Even though I do not attend the Mount, I was outraged by your editorial in the Nov. 13, 1986 issue. This was concerning the controversy over a leg auction held on your campus to raise funds.

Your comments in the editorial express the attitude which discourages males from attending the Mount. I am a mature student freshman at SMU, but had applied to the Mount and had been accepted. The reason why I did not want to attend the Mount, was because I did not want to endure the attitudes of people such as yourself, for the next four years.

Your comment, "But what do they expect? The Mount is a women's university," reflects a narrow-minded, sexist way of thinking, and total disregard for the male population at your university. Where do you get off speaking for the administration and faculty of the Mount? As I see it, they are trying very hard to make the Mount a progressive and world-class university, and get away from the type-cast of a strictly ladies college turning out degree housewives.

I have no problem with a leg auction, what I have a problem with is small-minded editors, (who also wrote the column covering the event) using the power entrusted to them, to get up on a soapbox and speak of what they know not.

I feel very sorry for male students at the Mount who have to go through their degree, feeling like they are not a part of the university, because of being ostracized by students such as you. I also believe any potential male students reading your editorial will certainly have second thoughts.

Sincerely,
Robert Costelo

Mount gives opportunities

Dear Editor:

In reply to Scott Verret's letter in the October 22 issue concerning the appointment of the architects for the new building, I would like to clarify the position adopted by the Board of Governors of Mount Saint Vincent University.

From its inception, Mount Saint Vincent has been concerned primarily with the education of women and with the changing needs of women in society. Accordingly, the university supports actions which provide opportunities for properly qualified, experienced women to advance in their chosen professions. This is consistent with the university's published mission statement and philosophy.

In the process of interviewing the representatives of various firms, each was asked whether women architects held senior positions within the firm. It was not the intention of the Mount to require that such persons would be assigned to our project. It was intended to ensure that qualified, experienced women would be given opportunities for career advancement in any firm with which the Mount is associated.

Yours truly,
Paul Reyno
Purchasing Agent

Dear Editor:

I would like to express my thanks to chef Rene and to the person in charge of residence for their kind offer to feed and house anyone who was stuck on campus Wednesday evening because of the snow storm. Their generosity made an otherwise miserable evening bearable.

Tom Barrett
President
MSVU Staff Association

Sincere thanks

Dear Editor of the Sicaro,

I would just like to start out by thanking you, the editor and staff of the Sicaro, for coming out this week. I think this is such a wonderful idea. Further, I wish to thank you, the student, for reading the Sicaro; without you where would we be.

I would also like to thank the department for all the support. A special thank-you should go to the PR Department for helping the Sicaro so very much and a personal thank-you to Bobbie Leak for all the fun things he does to keep the Sicaro staff on their toes. Without you Bobbie, where would we be.

A general thank-you must be given to the administration for just being there. Without you, where would we be.

Yours with Thanks,
Thank You Sue

Society STAINS the Mount

by Melita Gargoyle
and Slob Goaler

A small inebriated group of students are attempting to acquire funding for their new society at MSVU.

Students Testing Alcohol In New Situations (STAINS) have a mandate to consume alcohol in various types of imaginative circumstances.

Society flounder and incumbent grand poohbah stain Marina Ginandtonic said: "Student council doesn't seem to think that students will benefit from the experience STAINS can offer. If they don't want to supply funding the least they could do is give us some liquid assets."

"For years university students have been thought of as heavy drinkers. We're just officially living up to our name," said STAINS co-flounder Rob Obliterated.

"We're especially concerned with frosh at the Mount. Proper alcohol education is essential in their development as true university students," he said.

Initiation requirements for the society include standing on your head, drinking beer and reciting "Drink long and pass out", which is the revised Vulcan

STAIN moto.

Newest STAIN member Donna LaLush said, "It's easy. The bubbles tickle your nose!"

Serious consideration was given to the society after Ginandtonic spent three days standing on her head in front of the Motherhouse.

"The concept fits the status quo, but we can't okay funding because I still have two payments left on my new Mercedes," said student council grand poohbah Susan Blitzed.

Approximately 2,500 students are members of STAINS.

The Sicaro is found to be infectious

by Hack E. Sack

A study recently completed by Theresa Tobin's stats 203 class clearly defines how infectious diseases travel from student to student at the Mount.

Scott Sherwood, a stats student who attends when the need arises (about twice a semester), explains the study. "We're sure these diseases originate in the Sicaro office."

Steve Jennex, a stats student and Sicaro staff member, describes the first stages. "As in the case of Photopool director Kevin Fraser's eye disease last year, members of the staff are first to develop symptoms."

Last year, Fraser's bacterial conjunctivitis was first transmitted to the production assistant Katrina Aburrow. When Aburrow used the typewriter or the telephone, and she used the telephone often, germs were left on these implements of news and gossip gathering. Other staff members were then exposed to these germs when using the said apparatus, or during the regular Tuesday night orgies and layout.

"From there, the path of diseases are easy to follow," said Sherwood. "The germs grow on the layout flats and go to the printers. As the paper is run off, one highly potent germ attaches itself to each final copy. When a student touches a Sicaro, they are attacked by the germ."

Entertainment editor Rob

Caume was tortured and finally told this reporter that diseases are actually a Sicaro plot to control the student body in their weakened state. "I withstood the bamboo shoots under the fingernails," said Caume, "but when they threatened to destroy my Bananarama collection, I broke down."

Men's hockey to undergo a change of roles

by Nate Hawthorne

Several MSVU hockey players are taking action following the surprise decision by A/R officials to withhold funds for a Mount men's hockey team, and will head to Sweden soon to seek help.

The athletes are headed to Goteburg to discuss sex-change operations with Swedish medical specialists.

Becoming female, according to coach Grant McLean, would make the team eligible for funding for uniforms and equipment including athletic bras instead of jockstraps.

Athletic director June Lumsdumb said, "The reason we can't support a men's hockey team is because it would be made up of men and not women. That would make men the athletes and women the athletic supporters."

However, Lumsdumb supports the team's initiative, being a supporter of sorts herself. The new "ladies" she feels would be more masculine than most, but "would fit right in at the

Presently, other men's teams at the Mount are funding themselves through various forms of personal sales. However, critics contend that hockey players selling themselves would be unprofitable and abusive for the player. Nevertheless, many hockey players have expressed interest in self-abuse.

Although this year will be a problem, insiders feel the Mystics hockey team will be a strong contender to capture the Nova Scotia College Conference women's hockey league championships next year.

Saceteria goes up in smoke

by Rona Ineedaman Shoss

Recent health regulations allow for non-smoking students to wear smoke masks while eating in the smokeateria.

"Although it hinders lunch conversation, I feel protected," said health-conscious Sicaro sports reporter Jeff "health-lungs" Mann.

The Mount's Non-smoking Society supported the decision to supply masks at the door.

According to the Canadian Federation of Students health plan, students are entitled to smoke protector masks in high-polluted campus areas.

"The first time I walked in the smokeateria I couldn't see my feet for the smoke. I had to use a smoke horn to walk across the room," said ex-smokeateria eater Shelley Maurier Murphy.

Rob Smoke-Aholic Caume said, "The smokeateria is my favorite ash tray place on campus. We hold fundraising smoke blowing contests and roll-a-cig races."

"I'd just die without the smokeateria," said long-time chain smoker Alex "I-need-a-smoke" Dow.

The smoke has changed the menu plan. Specials include smoked ham, smoked salmon and mackerel, smoked pizza and the ever-famous smoked salad.

"We don't have to cook anymore, the smoke does it for us. It's a great way to save on energy bills," said the smokeateria chef Rothmans.

PR prof arrested for animal behavior

by Know Bum

Public relations professor Bob Lake, who recently appeared in the Vinnies leg auction dressed as a rabbit, has been arrested by the SPCA for impersonating an animal on at least three occasions.

SPCA officials caught Lake in a squirrel costume at Point Pleasant Park, bumming nuts from tourists.

Professor Judy Scrimger, who wished to remain anonymous, acknowledges that Lake's strange behaviour has long been a concern of the department. "It wasn't so bad at first," she said. "He just used to come to work occasionally in a dog suit. However, things got worse as Lake's obsession increased."

"It got quite embarrassing when he used to come to staff meetings dressed as a parrot," said Scrimger. "It took house-keeping hours to clean up the droppings."

While Lake is undergoing treatment at the Nova Scotia Hospital, his teaching duties will be picked up by colleague Chitra Reddin. "I'll really miss him and his chicken suit," said Reddin. "A fresh egg in the morning was really nice."

Public Relations plans for the new year

by Donna La unfavorite

Plans are well under way for the 1987 PR Society's fundraising events which will include a male bathing suit contest and a female cup size competition.

"After the stink that was raised over the male leg auction, we feel we'll need a little more of a balance when exploiting men and women next year," said Giseanne Goodgirl Lillham, co-exploittist of the PR fundraising committee.

The female cup size competition will allow Mount women to display the covered upper portion of their bodies to a panel of judges. Brassiere stuffing will be limited to three items. No large electrical appliances will be allowed i.e. no toasters or refrigerators.

"The male bathing suit contest will hopefully raise some hell," said Goodgirl Lillham. All shapes and sizes of swimsuits will be allowed. The committee will insist that all external organs be covered. The men will be judged on perversity, tone, and extendibility.

"I think the plans are great," said Surely Mursey, twelfth-year BPR student. "It's about time we got to see the flesh of our fellow male students, it's something which female Mount students have been deprived of for a long time."

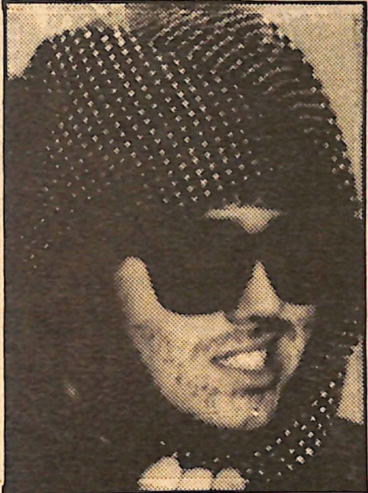

"I feel that the plans show a definite growth in the PR fundraising committee's ability," said Rob-Ogging-her, fifth-year PFR (Bachelor of Female Relations) student.

PLO introduction

As part of our Canadian University Press commitment to lend support and publicity to terrorist organizations, we proudly present PLO introductions... an offshoot of MSA introductions.

Gunter Gimmler

Gunter Gimmler—Gunter is a first-year bachelor of chemical warfare student. His hobbies include reading, studying for exams and badly injuring Zionists. Gunter says that being in the PLO gives him a great deal of satisfaction. "I wanted to give new and coming terrorists the support that meant so much to me when I was just starting out."

Gunter plans on becoming a chemical engineer, but hopefully there'll be plenty of time for rip-roaring terrorist activities!

Chiquita Martinez

Chiquita Martinez—"I think being in the PLO is really valuable on a resume. Uh, I shouldn't be telling you that, should I?" Well, Chiquita, I wouldn't worry, you're one of many fine young women who help new PLO kidnappers learn the ropes.

A first-year hostages and extortion student, Chiquita plans to enter the rapidly growing field of Not-Exchanging-Guns-for-Hostages-With-Republican-Presidents.

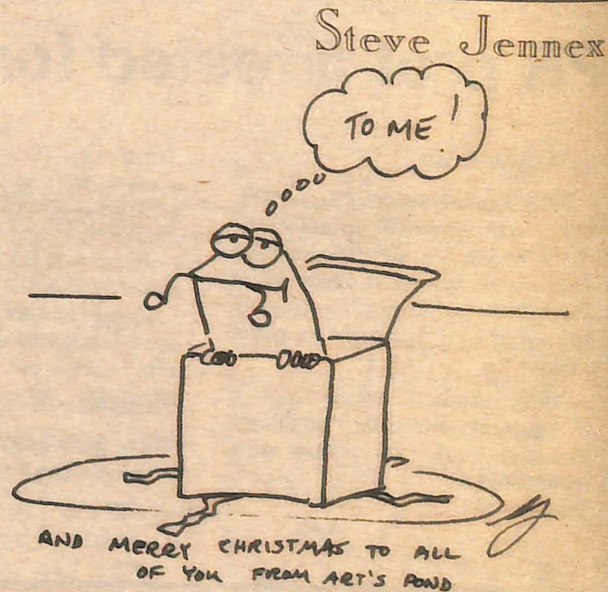

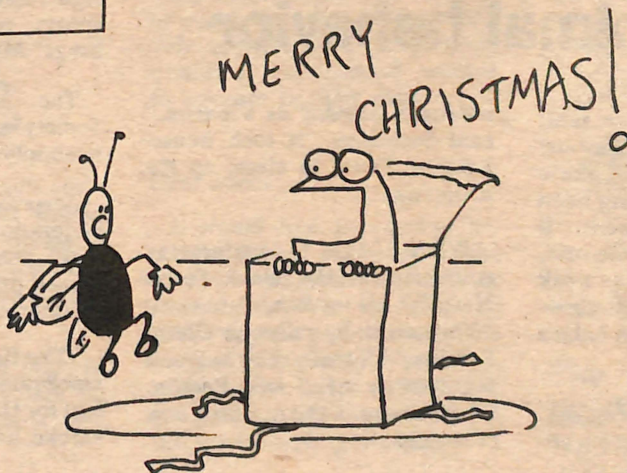

News briefs

Sicaro entertainment editor Robert Caume has won the dream of a lifetime. After entering a Mr. Canadian Teeny Bopper Contest, Robert won the right to sing lead vocalist on Banarama's next hit single "I'm Uranus".

Editor of the Sicaro Surely Mursey will star in a new movie entitled "The Color of Flesh". Murphy will play a sex-starved teen idol worshipper who loses all self-esteem when she pledges her love to G-string Malone (Bandrew Adley). After this she has a breakdown and becomes the editor of a cheap tabloid called the Picaro.

The newly established Student Rip-off Committee has devised a plan to balance council's budget. They plan to rip-off student possessions on campus like pens and stationery and resell them in the book store. Soo Smythe, president of the SROC said, "This is the only way we can possibly balance our budget, the only way we can possibly ensure the facist-backed Sicaro rag, and the only way we can possibly ensure filling our pockets with lots and lots and lots of money before we leave this wonderful place."

Art's Pond

Sex comes into schools for student information

by J.B. Ass

After the sexual revolution, the majority of schools in Canada have introduced sex education as part of their curriculum.

The Nova Scotia board of education says that "sex education class is the most popular school of thought and is gaining converts everyday, and night. It is the most important of the creative arts, far outstripping singing, acting, painting, etc. . . ."

With all this, there are still parents who feel that sex education has no place in the school curriculum. The non-profit organization, Mothers Opposed to Sex Education in Schools, (MOSES) says that sex education is much better taught in the home.

A board of education representative responds to this by saying "the relaying of sex information is a challenge that few parents are able to meet. It is so difficult that some parents even chose adoption rather than having to explain what X did to Y to get Z".

Also in support of the board's view is a local clergyman, Ima For-It. He spoke before a group of MOSES about the church not being able to help them with their dilemma. "The church, having propagated the story of the virgin birth, has tended to have a somewhat mixed attitude toward any other kind of sex. I'm sorry but sex has to go to school," he said.

One teacher had this to say: "We see love as an oasis in the desert of life. We see sex as a camel coming to the oasis, and we believe the teacher's job is to help our camel rider (the student) over the hump."

A grade six teacher said she started teaching sex to her students two weeks ago. "I told the young pupils that I would try my best to teach them about their body functions," she said. "I was kind of nervous after I told the class I found a contraceptive in the corridor and a little girl raised her hand and asked what a corridor was."

The school principal expressed his views on the subject before students and their parents in the auditorium last week. "The importance of sex education cannot be over-estimated," he said. "There were no teachers to soothe our anxieties when I was a boy. They just kept telling us that we were going to go blind. I've never been to an eye doctor once, even at this late day."

There was only one opposition from the school board. A grade four teacher said that it isn't fair to have the burden of sex education on the shoulders of a teacher who may be a specialist in history but is only a lay person in sex.

"Its teaching should be turned over to professional sex specialists who could visit schools a couple times a week and give intensive demonstrations," she said. "As with any good teacher, the main objective of these professionals would be to implant in the students a lust for learning."

It is evident from this report that we are on the threshold of a different tomorrow. It is clear that accidents will be out and choice will be in. It concludes that artificial insemination will take its place right next to instant coffee. Face it MOSES, sex is in school to stay.

Pick-Up Bingo ends with a bang

by Melita Gargoyle
and Slob Goaler
BS PRESS

Jan Bodice, MSVU Ventertainment Director has devised a new way for young men and women to start "meaningful" relations at the Mount.

"People come to pub nights hoping to meet someone, but end up leaving alone," said Bodice. "This is a trend Ventertainment Directors have been trying to alleviate for years," she said.

The Bingo Night begins as each person who enters Vinnies pub receives a number. Then the usual Wednesday night pub scene is set: copious amounts of alcohol are consumed, glances are exchanged, girls dance, men (not from the Mount) saunter over to females across the room—hunger in their eyes, etc., etc., etc.

At midnight, bingo jockey Guido Frazer announces, "Under the covers!" at which time corresponding number holders are matched. The couples yell, "Bingo!" upon contact and then stumble out of the pub together. That is the end to the Bingo game—any further game playing is up to the couples themselves.

A bus service has been established to ensure that the low-male student enrollment at the Mount can be compensated by

SMU, TUNS and Dalhousie men.

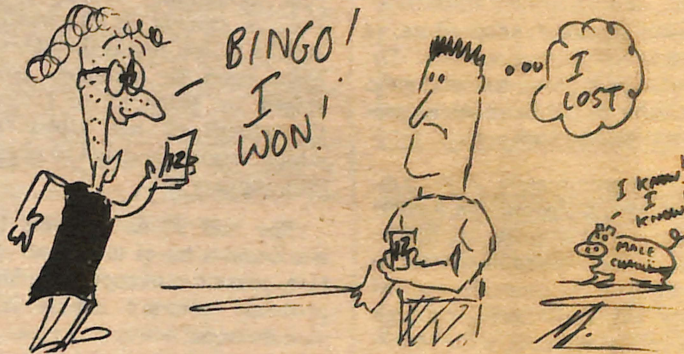

Fifth-year home economics student Bob Be-good-to-me-baby-Bryan said, "I've been striking out for years but I'm confident these bingo nights will keep me wrapped in babes for sure! I've already had number 4, 2 and 73".

"Certain criteria must be met before students can participate in the game," said Bodice.

A breathalyzer set up at the entrance of Vinnies will be used to check the intoxication level of students. If students register under 0.18 they will be refused admittance.

"The Wednesday night bingo in Vinnies is a sure-fire way for as soon as they enter the pub," said Bodice.

us to make sure that no one leaves empty-handed," Bodice added.

"This will allow proper interaction between students to begin

Be-good-to-me-baby-Bryan has requested that if number 73 of last week's pub night is reading this article that he/she call him at 469-6969.

Sicaro staff get the bum wrap

by Tongue Tied

Many of this year's frosh have noticed a trend in the campus police as they are built like pretty boys found in the latest issues of GQ.

Campus police similarities do not stop in looks, as all of them fit into the standard rugby shirts and tight jeans.

Sicaro staff members Art Jennex and Jeff Manliness have also noticed this trend and feel that they were left off the Mount squad for this reason.

Art Jennex says, "It's not my fault that I was standing behind the door when God gave out bums. Besides that, I have some muscles, they're just in miniature sizes."

Jeff Manliness also has the flat bum problem, but said that he was never discriminated against for this reason. "The only other time that this factor would come into play is with girls. And if they don't like me, well, I just kick them in the . . ."

Neither of them have ever worn a rugby shirt which resembles a blue and white bumble bee and it's doubtful that they could get jeans to hug their curves (or lack there of) without cutting off circulation to their waists.

However, both applicants felt that they were well qualified. Jennex can laugh his way out of a synagogue with the Rabbi in stitches, while Manliness has no problem helping a person to drink their way out of a wet paper bag.

Both applicants have proved their alcohol awareness abilities on many drunken layout night parties and are active members of Students Testing Alcohol in New Situations (STAINS).

However, this was not enough to help them get through campus police's tight policy. It's too bad that such active Mount students could not quite measure up.

MT&T perform a minor miracle

by Robert Cumless
BS Press

Katrina Aburrow, third-year

BPR student, underwent a new operation in which an MT&T cellular telephone was implanted in her left ear.

"I've already made 435 calls in the first three hours after I came out from under the knife," said Aburrow. "I've read about this kind of operation in Ding-Aling Monthly, but I never dreamed I would actually get one for little 'ole me," she said.

Dr. Andrew Murphy couldn't believe just how excited Aburrow was. "She wouldn't let me give her any gas, she wanted to see everything." He went on to explain that when the receiver was implanted, Aburrow shed tears of joy.

"I'm a new person, and I know the Picaro staff is relieved," said Aburrow.

Surely Mursey, Sicaro editor said, "It's a good thing we won't have to listen to her ramblings with various landscapers. If we had to listen to one more call, she'd be having a telephone surgically removed from somewhere else," said Mursey.

What's next for Aburrow? Who knows, she might even go cordless and not have to walk around with the ridiculous cord sticking out of her ass.

The only evidence of Katrina Aburrow's operation can be seen in this recent photo.

Pastel attack

by Alasdair Fenton
Silhouette Staff

This article is about entertainment. Not a review or critique of an event or show but an exposé of a powerful and at the moment underground revolution.

I am speaking of course of the Pastel Revolution. At the centre of this movement are two men. Sonny Crockett and Ricardo Tubbs alias Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas.

These two men front a clandestine organization called Miami Vice. Supported by a team of crack hair stylists, fashion designers, and an unlimited supply of hair gel, these two men have swept up North America in a movement more powerful than Wrestlemania.

I am not going to pass judgement on them but merely reveal the impact and consequences of this movement.

If you have recently been in a clothes store you know what I'm referring to. Even the most mundane clothes store now assaults you with a sensual bombardment of coloured neon and a plethora of hot pinks and cool blues.

Adolescents as young as ten now dress in clothes more expensive than their parents', call each other "pal" and smoke filterless cigarettes. A good tan is now regarded as secondary only to a skateboard with green neon wheels.

Not only youngsters are being affected. Middle-aged and seemingly down-to-earth dentists have been redecorating their waiting rooms in record numbers without a trace of the earth tones that graced their walls only a year ago.

It really hits home as you recline in a stucco chair, surrounded by six-foot tropical trees, staring at a pink wall listening to the cascading sound of water as it flows lazily by your feet. Dentists are not naturally like this.

There are rumours that the Pastel Revolution is going to join up with Pepsi's New Generation. If such a merger occurs our lives may be changed forever.

Muchbull missing at the Mount

by Juste Pour Rire
BS Press

Baby Big Foot, adopted son of former Mount president Dr. Margaret Fulton, has abducted bachelor of public relations professor Judith Muchbull.

At approximately 3:30 p.m. Tuesday afternoon, Dr. Lobert Rake heard a noise in Muchbull's office. When Rake went to investigate the cause, he spotted Baby Big Foot fleeing through the office window with Muchbull clasped tightly in his right hand.

"It was frightening—just like a scene out of King Kong," said Rake. "I tried to go after Baby Big Foot but he moved too fast through the woods behind Seton Annex."

Police, students and professors have formed search parties and are scouring the woods for any sign of the beast and Muchbull.

Not everyone is convinced that Muchbull's abduction was a real kidnapping. Shona Rossconi, a student in Muchbull's PRL 202 class, thinks that it may have been an elaborate ploy staged by Muchbull to extend the length of her sabbatical which is not scheduled to begin until January 1987.

"She had 32 assignments to mark and a lot of other end-of-term pressures to cope with. She probably couldn't handle it," said Rossconi.

Police have ordered Rake to undergo psychiatric tests to try and confirm if he's telling the truth about the "kidnap" scene.

"What Dr. Rake saw may have been a reincarnation of a childhood nightmare stored in his peripheral memory," said Dr. Ruth Westheimer, leading Halifax psychiatrist and good friend of Rake.

There is a rumour making its way around the university community that Rake has a very vivid imagination when it comes to animals and, on occasion, he has been known to dress as a rabbit for public relations society functions.

If this rumour is true, it certainly casts some doubt as to the validity of Rake's testimony.

Rake swears by his statement and has joined the search party for Muchbull.

Baby Big Foot is 6'5" tall, dark-brown hair all over his body, and bad breath. Muchbull is 4'6" tall, . . .

If anyone has any information about their whereabouts, they are asked to notify the police.

Big Foot, adopted last year during winter carnival week by former MSVU president Margaret Fulton, is believed to have abducted PR professor Judith Muchbull.

Commies gather in Sicaro office

by Paul "Bolshevik"
Paquet

In a shocking development, all 15 members of the Sicaro confessed their membership in the Workers Marxist-Leninist People's Communist Party. Said editor Surely Mursey, "The exploitation of the working classes by business elites has been a closet concern of mine for some time now."

Mursey also unveiled a new agenda for next semester's news coverage. "We'll be getting to the heart of our corrupt capitalist system; we'll attack the mega-corporations dead-on, devoting major sections of our paper to the labor movement, terrorists, and radical groups such as Lesbians for a Nuclear-Free South Africa."

"It's going to be a lot more like your standard CUP paper. Lots of social conscienceness. It's about time the Sicaro hit the issues," said long-time radical activist Alex Dow, taking a break from his poetry reading and hunger-strike outside the Motherhouse.

In a related story, the entire staff resigned from the public relations program, citing it as a glib, sugar-coated tool with which the multi-nationals spread their lying right-wing filth to the working man who hungers to be free of his chains.

The parking problem moves to new solution

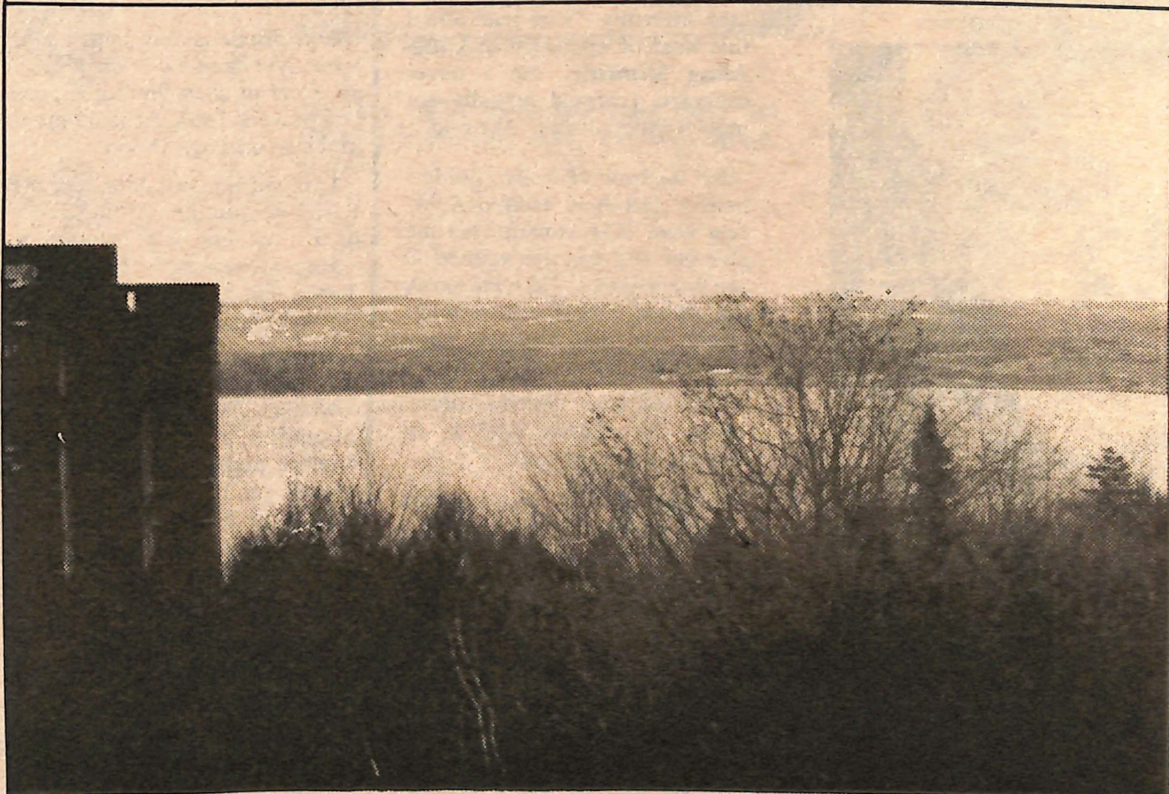

by Blob Hyper
and Melita Gargoyl

In an attempt to improve parking conditions at the Mount, the university has purchased part of the Bedford Basin.

At first the planning committee thought of paving the Basin but, after carefully considering the factors involved, decided that it wouldn't be necessary.

"We have faith that God will make the cars float," said Noah Hersom, MSVU President. "If He doesn't we won't give Him anymore of that green money we grab from each and every student all the time," she said.

Director of Student Disservices, Badd Weade, is excited about the new project and thinks it will help improve the parking situation at the Mount. "I'm excited about the new project and think it will help improve the parking situation at the Mount," said Weade.

Bedford Basin will be the site for MSVU's extended parking lot. Motorists are advised to take swimming lessons before purchasing parking decals.

"The Bedford Basin will accommodate approximately about, in the range of, 371 cars—and two Chevettes," said Weade. Student Disservices has decided to sell 4,000 parking permits

Since no clearing or paving will be required, students will be able to get a parking permit for the unbelievably low price of just $75.

"By next April we'll have a special rate for those students who feel that $75 is too steep. For the amazing price of only $65, they can have a parking spot in the Burnside Industrial Park," said Weade.

University ticket writer Itchy Fingers said, "I really like this job. In fact, I am somewhat of a leading expert in my field (or parking lot you might say). With all the new parking spaces, I will have even more opportunity to practice my profession. I am eager to learn more about impeding traffic."

Annual Christmas service

Christmas is many things to many people, but to most it is a time for families to gather and celebrate the yuletide season. As in past years the Mount Saint Vincent "family" of students, staff and faculty is invited to the annual Christmas service, Wed., Dec. 3 at 4 p.m. in Our Lady of Wisdom Chapel, Evaristus Hall.

The Advent Christmas Ecumenical Celebration, sponsored by the campus ministry, will be a vesper service with prayers, carols, music and scripture readings. The Seton Cantata Choir will also be in attendance.

Following the service, there will be a candlelight procession to the Rosaria cafeteria where Christmas dinner will be served. Tickets for the dinner go on sale Nov. 24 at the information desk in Rosaria Centre. Get yours early as there are only a limited number available.

Inter-Collegiate Pizza Contest

The finals for the Inter-Collegiate Pizza-Eating Contest will be held this Sat., Nov. 29 at Lawrence of Oregon. The Business Society will be representing the Mount. They won the Mount championships by beating the Science Society in an eat-off. The object is for five people to eat as many pizzas as they can in five minutes. I'm dreaming of a white Christmas

This poem is dedicated to all those lazy bun-of-sitches who pay to get their driveways done.

I'm dreaming of a white Christmas.
The ones with tons and tons of snow.
Where the tree tops are hidden
And drivers are smitten
By overtime hours to which they can't say no.

I'm dreaming of even more money
With every bill and invoice I write
May the snow be heavy; not light
And may all our Christmases be white.

Kubla Hersom Khan and the dating lounges

by Samuel J.K. Taylor Coleridge

In Vincent Hall did Prez Hersom
A stately pleasure-dome decree:
Where Hanes, the sacred nylons ran
In dating lounges made for man
Made for a cup of tea.

So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girdled round:
And here were gardens bright with holy statues still,
Where blossomed many an incense-bearing tree;
And here were nuns ancient as the hills,
Enfolding moldy habits of greenery.

But oh! that deep romantic lounge which slanted
Down the Vincent Halls athwart a pillow cover!
A savage place! as holy and enchanted
As e'er beneath a crucifix was haunted
By residents wailing for their off-limit lovers!
And from this lounge, with ceaseless turmoil seething,
As if this couple in fast thick pants were breathing,
A manly fountain momentarily was forced:
Amid whose swift half-intermitted burst
Clothes fragments vaulted like rebounding hail,
Or chaffy grain in Vinnies pub's ale:
And 'mid this dancing couple as close as ever
It flung up momentarily the sacred river.
R.A.'s meandering with a mazy motion
Through Evaristus and Assisi the sacred river ran,
Then reached the dating lounges made for man,
And sank in tumult to a lifeless sofa:
And 'mid this tumult Hersom heard from far
Ancestral presidents prophesying war!

The shadow of the dome of pleasure
Floated midway on the waves
Where was heard residents' measurements
From the Harolds and the Daves.

It was a miracle of rubber device,
A darkened pleasure dome with the couch of vice!

A damsel with a ghetto blaster
In the games room once I saw:
It was a Vincent Hall maid
And on her ghetto blaster she played
Singing with Bananarama.
Could I revive within me
Her Hermits wine and song,
To such a deep delight 'twould win me.

That with music loud and long,
I would build that dome in air,
That darkened dome! That lounge of vice!
And nuns who heard should see them there,
And all should cry, Shut Up! Shut Up!
His drooling lips, his perfect hair!

Weave a circle round him thrice
And close your eyes with holy dread,
For he on honey-dew hath fed,
And drunk the milk of dating lounge Paradise.
