1973-74

Academic Dean

Sister Margaret Molloy

Dedication

Sister Margaret Molloy, putting aside her love of teaching history, came to Mount Saint Vincent University in 1968 as Academic Dean. Prior to her engagement at the Mount as Academic Dean, Sister was also involved with the Mount as a student, receiving her Bachelor of Arts degree, and a Diploma in Education. As well as these degrees Sister also has her Bachelor of Library Science. As a teacher of fourteen years Sister Margaret Molloy gained much experience in Halifax, Dartmouth, and Quebec. Returning to study Sister Margaret Molloy earned her Masters of Arts in history from the Universities of Boston and Windsor, Ontario.

This past academic year, 1973-74, was Sister's last year at the Mount as Academic Dean. Her future plans include continued study. Sister leaves behind many well wishing friends at Mount Saint Vincent University. The university community is grateful to Sister for her frankness, interest, co-operation, and humor. We also hope that Sister's unfulfilled wish for a Newfoundland dog comes true.

The Yearbook staff feel that the dedication of this book to Sister Margaret Molloy is but only a small tribute to her unending concern.

ALL THESE
MAKE LIFE WORTH LIVING

So many things can make life worth the living -
A bright spring day with blue skies overhead
The gentle breeze, the warm and rhythmic showers.
The shady trees, the fragrant flower-bed,
The shallow pond that sparkles in the sunlight,
The rainbow arched above a distant hill,
The break of dawn that sets each cloud on fire.
The cheerful sound of lark and whippoorwill,
A home where there is warmth and understanding,
Where love abides and friendship is a guest.
A trust in God and in each new tomorrow,
A job well-done and hours of peace and rest,
A book that lifts the thoughts and spirits upward,
The unexpected kiss, the warming smile . . .
All these can fill the heart with cheer and sunshine
And make our lives a little more worthwhile.

SETON

SETON ACADEMIC CENTRE

Seton Academic Centre is our latest academic building. It was officially opened by Premier Gerald Regan on October 13, 1971, and blessed by Archbishop Hayes. The Centre is dedicated to Elizabeth Bayley Seton, foundress of the American Sisters of Charity.

The Mount foresees an increased student enrollment of up to 1500 students - Seton Academic Centre is an integral part of this planned expansion. Its contemporary walls enclose several departments formerly located in Evaristus Hall, thus allowing for enlargement of the main library. The building is flexible, especially due to the central auditorium which may be used as a whole, as two semi-circular auditoriums, or as four audio-visual lecture theatres. It is amenable to varied types of programs.

Evaristus Hall is the main building of Mount Saint Vincent University. Dating from two years before the fire that destroyed the "Old Mount", it is the oldest university structure on campus. Archbishop McNally turned the first sod in 1949. Started under the leadership of Sister Mary Evaristus, our first president and the building's namesake, it was ready for occupation in 1951. Classes were held as of September 25, 1952. Additions to the structure were made five years later. Today, Evaristus Hall encompasses residence rooms, administrative offices, the chapel, the library, and a number of classrooms and laboratories.

The year of 1966 was a noteworthy one at the Mount for two reasons. On April 16, 1966, legislation revised the College Charter so that Mount Saint Vincent graduated to university status. In the same eventful year, buildings that were the first to be raised since 1952 were completed -- Assisi and Rosaria Halls.

Assisi Hall is a twelve-story residence with accommodations for one-hundred forty people. Consisting of, for the most part, single rooms, it also has lounges, laundry-room, and kitchenettes on every second floor.

Rosaria Hall is adjacent to Assisi Hall and connected to Evaristus by a heated tunnel. It is a student centre with Student Affairs and Student Services offices, the bookstore and bank, and, perhaps most important of all, the cafeteria!

The Birches are five new student residences on campus. Raised in 1972, and as contemporary in conception as in date, these are shingled townhouses fully equipped to house one hundred students altogether in a comfortable and homelike atmosphere not readily available on university campus. Because they were not built in the traditional fashion, the new residences caused little disturbance to the natural environment. Therefore, although short steps away from the main campus area, these seem to form a self-contained village blending with the trees and clustered around the university pond.

REGISTRAR'S OFFICE

For the 1973-74 academic year, the Mount again increased its enrollment. In September, we registered 1200 full-time and 500 part-time students - a considerable increase over last year. The great popularity of our secretarial programmes, now filled to capacity, was undoubtedly part of the reason. We also had an encouraging increase in arts and education, and the other programmes held steady.

The increase in part-time enrollment from 350 the year before) results in part from the activity of the continuing education department, which has attracted women to the campus for short orientation programmes; many of these women have since enrolled in credit courses. The trend across Canada indicates increasing involvement by mature students - a trend certainly visible on this campus.

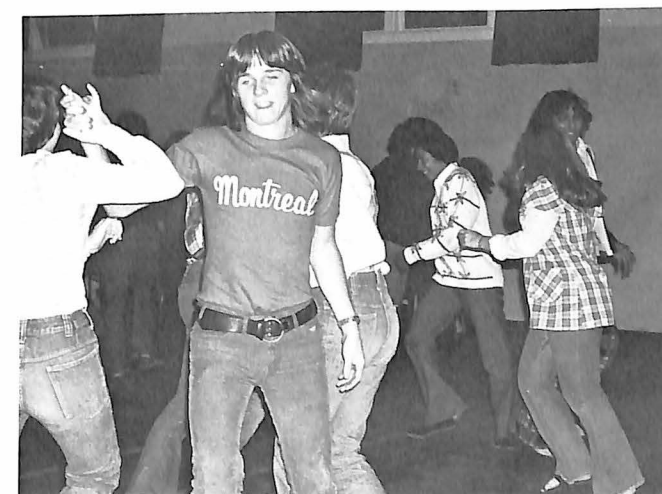

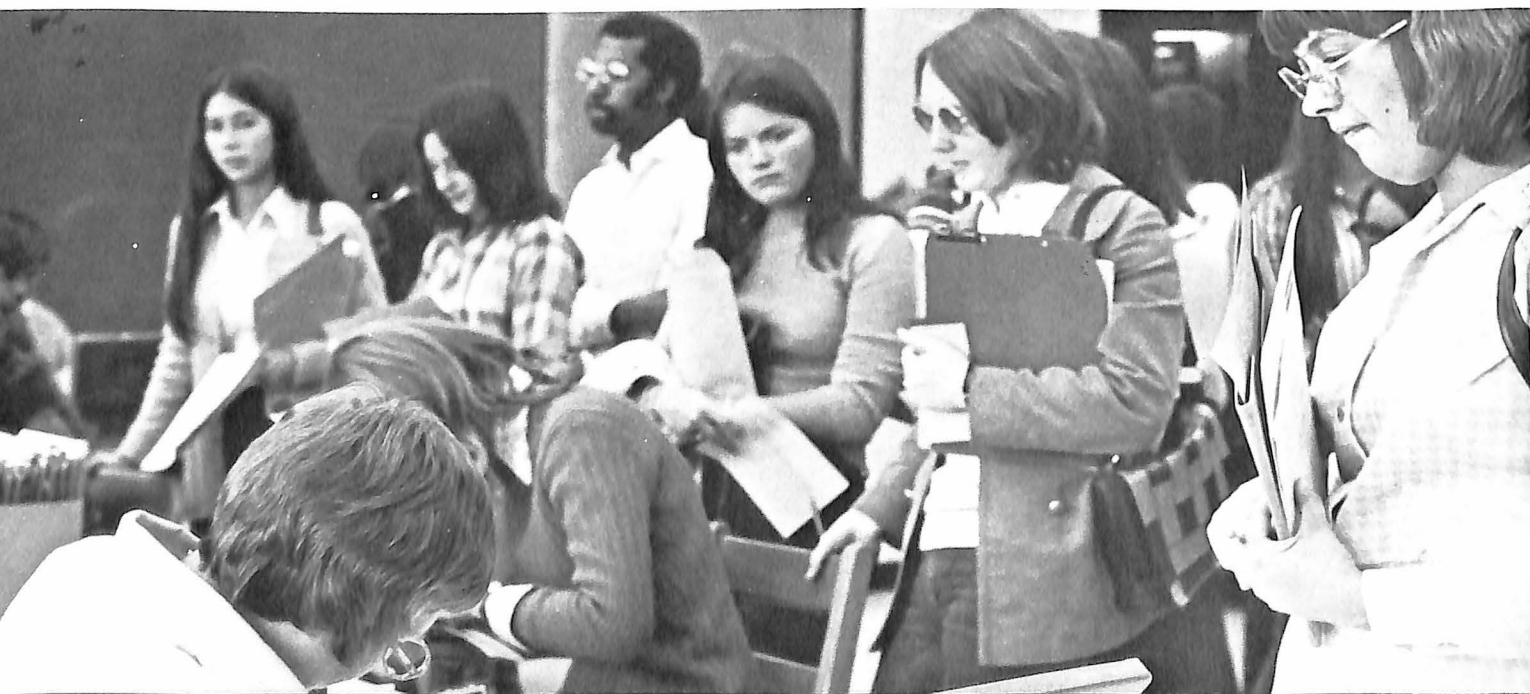

Admissions had a good year, and the signs for 1974-75 are most encouraging.

ATHLETICS

This year the Mount competed in three sports intercollegiately.

Field Hockey - Mount Field hockey team played a number of exhibition games with the other universities and competed in the intercollegiate Junior Varsity tournament in October.

Volleyball - The volleyball team played a number of exhibition games as well as competing in the Mount Allison Invitational. In the Intercollegiate Varsity "B" championship tournament held in Antigonish, the Mount did extremely well, and lost to Saint Francis Xavier, the tournament winners in the third and deciding game by two points.

Basketball - The basketball team showed flashes of brilliance but never did gain consistency due to injuries and illnesses which plagued the team all season. For the first time in three years the Mount girls finished lower than second in the Intercollegiate Junior Varsity Sectional tournament and were eliminated from further competition.

Intramural Activities included the following:

Tennis - A clinic was given to over 40 students in October by Provincial Coach, Bob Piers, and lessons were given throughout the winter by Waegwaltic Tennis Club's head instructor - Mrs. Mary-Lou Singer.

Instruction was also provided in Judo, Swimming, Yoga, Badminton, Golf and Curling.

BIOLOGY DEPARTMENT

About fifty students are studying for a B. Sc. with a major in Biology. Eleven seniors look forward to graduation this year inspired by their seminar in current literature.

A new course - "Plant Ecology" proved to be very interesting, as displayed at Open House. The colored slides showed students in action, collecting plants, studying zonation and populations were viewed enthusiastically by visitors.

While the weather permitted, field trips were enjoyed by the General Biology class and the Invertebrate Zoology class. The acquisition of a new marine aquarium made possible the close observation of sea animals during the cold winter months.

The microbiologists sought out clues to identify unknown organisms while the anatomists learned of the intricacies of the human body and many a midnight was enlivened by the counting of fruit flies.

A group of students attended the A. U. B. S. (Atlantic University Biology Seminar) at St. Francis Xavier University in March, where they exchanged ideas with other biology undergraduates.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT

MS. G. FLEMING

As in the past, busy-ness has been characteristic of the Business Department during 1973-74. Several Advisory Committee Meetings were held. Several new courses were approved for offering in September 1974. The Bachelor of Business Administration degree continued to attract ambitious and creative students. The first legal secretarial diplomas will be awarded in May. Next September will see the introduction of the executive secretarial diploma to replace the present general secretarial diploma. A large number of medical secretaries will graduate in May. Job opportunities are expected to increase with the increase in graduates: the Nova Scotia Dental Association is now interesting itself in the medical program.

Faculty members continued to be strong advocates of equal opportunities for women in business. Sister Elizabeth Weber attended a conference in Ottawa in January on "Emerging Women in Management". Sister Brenda Halton will attend a conference in Montreal early in April on "Women and Work".

The Business Society has had another active year. Social activities include a ski trip to Squaw Mountain during the March Break and a forthcoming social evening for faculty and students. The Society also hosted a short visit to the Mount by business students from Acadia University. Academic activities include the sponsoring of several secretarial students to attend a National Secretaries seminar. The Management students sponsored The Atlantic Business Conference which faculty and student representatives from most of the Maritime Schools of Business attended.

Growth seems to be the name of the game in the Business Department, and growing takes up a great deal of the time for all - faculty and student members alike.

CHAPLANCY

The Chaplains on the Mount Saint Vincent campus are resource people in preserving and strengthening the understanding and application of Christian values to student life and studies. University years challenge students to solve in some way the ambiguities of daily living. This is a time for questioning and search, a time of testing values against more sophisticated knowledge and insights.

Becoming mature as a Christian is not the easiest process in the academic effort. Values are often re-examined to assure their validity. Religious practices and beliefs are reevaluated to be placed upon a foundation of personal decision. Faith is made life-long, intelligent and meaningful. The Chaplains are faculty members whose subject area is "Christian Becoming".

Opportunities for a deeper relationship with Christ are provided through liturgical celebrations. Ecumenism is presented and fostered by a team chaplaincy.

Personal contracts of Chaplains with students in discussion, counseling and prayer together set up a community feeling of Christian involvement.

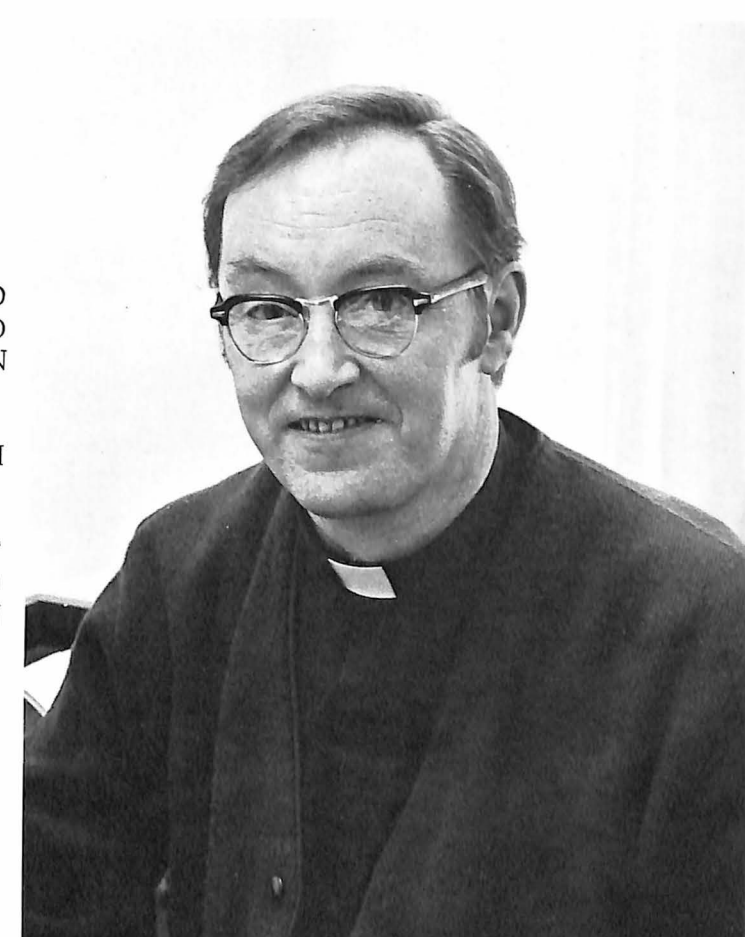

Social commitments to the poor, the sick and lonely, extend our university's Christian concern to the outside community. Programs of caring as Christians are brought to our campus to initiate the students' step into the world as Christians and leaders.

The Chaplaincy is a source and resource for those who wish greater depth in Christianity. It is another witness of MSVU that Christ has a primary place within our society.

CHEMISTRY DEPARTMENT

During the 1973-74 academic year, the department has a total of 14 students claiming chemistry as their major field of study. This constitutes an increase over last year but pales before the total of approximately 200 students taking chemistry courses in another capacity. The department has no graduating seniors this year.

The chemistry department has a policy of hiring undergraduate students as laboratory assistants and would like to express grateful thanks to the following students who have functioned in this capacity during the current year: Shelagh Ching, Cheryl Dauphinee, Anne Delicaet, Rose Deveaux, Brenda Goff, Wai Hing Hui, Marcia Livingston, Sherry Morash, Stephanie Napke, Rhonda Oakley, Debbie Reid, Cathy Sawka, and Thi Thi Zaw Tun.

CONTINUING EDUCATION

MAIRI MacDONALD

We are having a challenging and exciting year! . . . and striving, despite the great increase in number of Continuing Education students, to maintain the personal and informal atmosphere that means so much to us all. In this we are greatly assisted by faculty and all mature students who volunteer to work with us. To all of them we are most grateful.

MY WORLD: II, offered on campus during January-February, was attended by 34 enthusiastic women. We are now looking forward to our first off-campus series, MY WORLD: III, to be held in cooperation with the Herring Cove Junior High School.

A WOMEN TODAY: II, attracted over 100 women last November. As one of the participants reported, "that day made me take a real look at myself . . . and now I want to do more with my life". Another lady told us, "I returned to my profession (nursing) on a two days per week basis as a direct result of participating in A WOMEN TODAY: I, last spring".

A special feature of our current planning is an experimental Seminar, MY DAY, for retired men and women. We will focus on ways in which the university may better serve senior citizens, and ways in which they might like to make a contribution to the university community.

Our congratulations and best wishes to all of you who are graduating this year. We'll miss you on campus, and hope you will keep in touch. Lots of luck.

ECONOMICS

A. HARVEY

The Department of Economics prepares students for majoring in Economics and services the Business Department in training students for a degree in Bachelor of Business Administration.

The Department has nearly 370 students enrolled in nine different courses currently offered by the Department.

Our courses in Introductory Economics, Micro-economic Theory and Labor Economics have remained quite popular with the students. During the 1974-75 academic year the Department plans to introduce a tutorial system for all students taking Introductory Economics.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT

The Education Department at the Mount seeks to keep abreast of trends and constantly reviews the needs of society for competent personnel to work with children of varying ages and ability.

In response to the needs of developing children and their families, the Mount has initiated a two-year program leading to a certificate in child development.

Now in its second year, the integrated program with its built-in orientation to all aspects of teaching and learning is becoming more and more effective in aiding students to make informed decisions regarding their future careers in the profession.

The one year post-baccalaureate year is a demanding one with its courses in learning theory, humanistic foundations, curriculum and methodology.

The most current challenge to teachers lies in working with the exceptional child and Senate has approved a course for 1974-75 "Exceptional Children in Regular Classrooms".

One of the most pressing needs in the Atlantic area at the present time is for teachers with specialized skills in the area of reading. The Mount offers graduate programs with concentration in this field and has announced five $1,000 scholarships to teachers who are interested in pursuing full time studies.

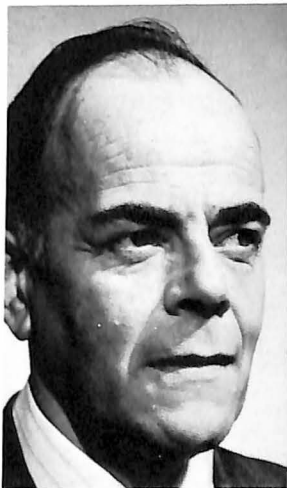

As the supply of teachers approaches the demand, the Mount takes the responsibility of selection seriously, not only from the point of view of the profession, but also from that of the prospective teacher and, of far greater importance, from the point of view of the children dependent upon properly selected teachers for their exposure to learning. No longer is teaching a matter of "whoever will may teach". It has now become a highly selective profession and the Mount is interested in the best possible candidates.

The number of students in the History Department went up from 200 in 1972-73 to 300 in 1973-74. The same change has occurred as regard majors; department enrollment of majors is approximately 60, about twice last year's enrollment.

This year's guest lecturer was Professor J.P. Wallot, Chairman of the Department of History of the University of Montreal. Professor Wallot spoke on French-English relations in Canadian History.

As happened last year, we are planning a second evening at which history majors and minors and faculty will meet.

The History Department added four new courses to the calendar which attracted many new students.

Academically the English Department introduced two significant new courses in 1973-74. English 102 is intended to help students who have problems with the basic mechanics of writing and with constructing essays, and English 211 is the first course in this region to deal with popular forms.

The main social activity has been the planning of the Theatre trip to London. Although the British energy crisis thinned out the numbers, a band of 28 enthusiasts made the trip with Olga Broomfield. The Department also held a successful party for the English Majors.

Individuals in the Department had various successes during the year. Dr. Olga Broomfield was appointed Chairman and received tenure; Sister Agnes Martha received her Ph.D. from Dalhousie University and gave public lectures on "Creative Writing" and "Canadian Poetry in Canadian Art"; David Monaghan was promoted to Associate Professor; Renate Usmiani introduced an experimental interdisciplinary course on Philosophy and Literature of the Absurd with Dr. Pierre Payer. Paul McIssac was appointed Secretary of the Atlantic Eighteenth-Century Society and elected President of the Faculty Association; and James Hill was Arts Representative of the Library Committee.

HOME ECONOMICS

DR. A. BRUDER

SR. GRETA CONRAD

DR. C.M. HARLOW

The academic year, 1973-74, was a busy and interesting year for both students enrolled in Home Economics and their professors.

This year, in addition to their many classes at the Mount, students become involved in community projects. Students in Family Studies classes visited those community agencies directly or indirectly concerned with families, unwed mothers, senior citizens' homes and classes for persons with learning disabilities and other handicaps. Each student in the communications class planned and carried through a project in the community. These projects resulted in some exciting learning experiences in communicating with persons of different socioeconomic levels and with various age groups.

The Consumer Studies Seminar class offered an "information and Complaint Service" to members of the Mount community. Most requests for information and complaints were handled directly by the students. However, in some cases where greater satisfaction for the consumer could be achieved by referring the complaint to the appropriate government agency, this was done. Articles on topics of interest to Mount consumers appeared regularly in the Picaro. The two experiences, handling complaints and information requests and writing a column for the Picaro, provided the Consumer Studies Seminar class with interesting learning experiences and provided the Mount with a new resource and service.

In addition to heavy class schedules and reality learning through community experiences, Home Economics students found time for social events and attendance at professional conferences.

The Languages Department ran a new course this year: The Acadian Seminar, which is open to all students, both part-time and full-time, for audit or for credit. The course explores, in French, the language and culture of the Acadians. Father Leger Comeau is the Cultural Consultant for the course. Dr. P. Gerin teaches the literature and language part, alternating with visiting lecturers who are eminent Acadians coming to speak once a fortnight on the subject of their specialty or concern. Visiting lecturers have included the Honourable Louis Robichaud and Mathilde Blanchard and many other interesting guest speakers.

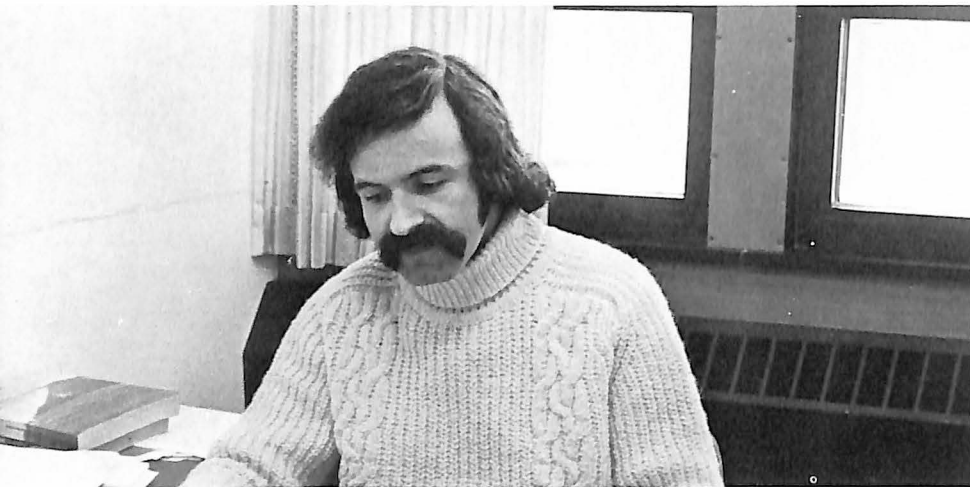

The Department is also attempting to arrange a Junior Year exchange with a Quebec university, to supplement the successful programme in Besnacon, France.

There is also a possibility being explored of a junior year in Germany. Several Mount students have worked and travelled in Germany this year, with the organizing assistance of Mr. Poller in the German Department.

Mrs. Hartzman has helped Spanish students to participate in summer cultural exchange programmes which include travel, and living with families, in Mexico and Spain. She has also developed a Spanish programme especially geared to the traveller.

MATHEMATICS DEPARTMENT

ROBBERT
RAFFLELOCK

About 25 students have mathematics for their major subject. For the most part, the minor students have as their chief interest economics, chemistry, or biology. Some students work for a double major in mathematics and economics. Five of our major students will graduate in May. Thirteen of our students are on the Dean's list. Both individual and group tutorial sessions are available for interested students.

NURSING DEPARTMENT

The following is a brief resume of the Nursing Department's activities for this year:

1. In October 1973, eleven second year students received their blue "V" which is worn on their nursing cap. This signifies they have successfully completed the first year nursing program. Fellow students and faculty were present.
2. A Christmas party for faculty and students was sponsored by The Dalhousie - M. S. V. U. nursing faculty in December, 1973.
3. The Dalhousie - M. S. V. U. Nursing Society held their annual nursing ball on January 28, 1974, at the Dalhousie Student Union Building.
4. Students from each year of the nursing program prepared demonstrations and were available to answer questions during Open House Day at Mount Saint Vincent University, January, 1974.
5. The M. S. V. U. nursing faculty have attended workshops held in this area, relating to student evaluation, family life and role as instructors.
6. The M. S. V. U. Nursing Society have been holding regular meetings this year. Ruth Fox, third year student, is President this year.

PHILOSOPHY DEPARTMENT

PIERRE PAYER

Philosophy can play a useful role in anyone's university programme. An attempt is made to provide avenues of introduction to areas of philosophical interest and relevance to students at M.S.V.U. who are majoring in areas other than philosophy. Our courses try to meet these needs and through invitations from other subject areas, we are able to make a philosophical input into some other courses this year.

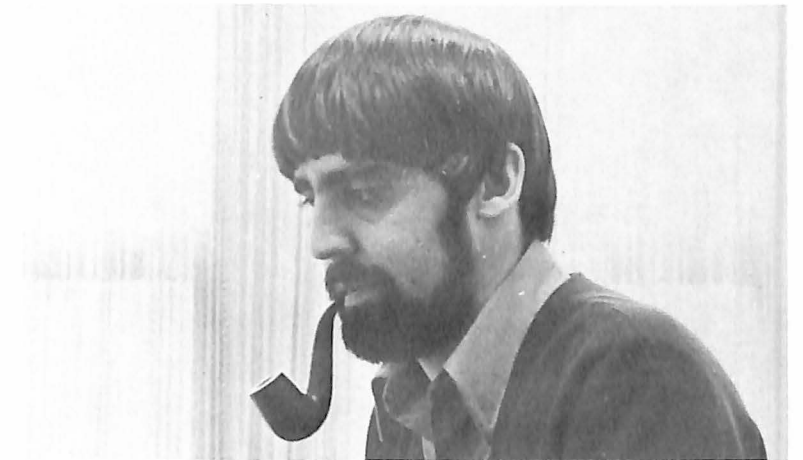

1973-74 saw the introduction of a course entitled 'Reasoning and Logic' to provide an opportunity to focus study on the important areas of language and reasoning. This last year also saw the introduction of an interdisciplinary course in literature and philosophy taught by Professor R. Usmiani and Professor Payer. This course examines the subject of meaning and the absurd found in certain segments of contemporary philosophy and literature. This year, it was decided to reintroduce a course of general interest for 1974-75 entitled 'Fundamental Problems of Religious Belief'. The department collaborated in sponsoring a lecture on Death and Dying by Professor G. Davidson which attracted widespread interest at the Mount.

We hope, for those graduates whose pictures appear in this volume and who took some philosophy during their stay at M.S.V.U., that philosophy made a valuable contribution to their overall education and we wish all the graduates success in the future.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

ROBERT VAISON

LARRY FISK

Though one of the smaller departments, Political Studies continues to be an active one. Our number of majors increased this year.

Over the year, we hosted as guest speakers a wide variety of stimulating individuals. To mention only a few: Mike O'Sullivan, a young Canadian student of politics who had done extensive research in Chile and had recently spoken with Mme. Allende; Claire Culhane, author of WHY CANADA IS IN VIETNAM and a recent visitor to both North and South Vietnam; Dr. Harry Smith, the Nova Scotia Ombudsman and former President of King's College; Jack Lakavich, the Atlantic Secretary of the S.C.M. who spoke to several classes on bilingualism and biculturalism in New Brunswick.

We continued our participation in interdisciplinary efforts on campus. Many of our students take cross-listed courses for which they receive recognition in their Political Studies program. Both faculty members in the Department addressed the Perspective on Women course, as did two of our students. About three dozen members of this Perspectives course elected a joint Political Studies/Religious Studies option for the second semester.

Both Larry Fisk and Bob Vaison took active part in off-campus activities, ranging from conferences on contemporary issues organized by the Student Christian Movement to founding efforts to get an Atlantic Provinces Political Studies Association off the ground. Both faculty members also took effective (?) part in faculty versus student athletic endeavours.

PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT

DONALD MOORS

During the 1973-74 university year, the department increased both its faculty members and course offerings. Sister Rosemarie Sampson joined Dr. Van Houten, Dr. Gordon and Mr. Moors as an Assistant Professor, offering courses in Personality and Psychometrics.

During the year, faculty members attended Psychology meetings in Victoria, B.C. (Canadian Psychological Association) and Montreal, P.Q. (American Psychological Association). Psychology students in turn, participated in the Atlantic Provinces Inter-University Committee on the Sciences meetings in Charlottetown, P.E.I. and Sackville, N.B. A number of students also participated in a solid state programming workshops in January which was sponsored by the department.

RELIGIOUS STUDIES

SR. ELIZABETH BELLEFONTAINE

REV. J.B. WHEATON

DR. J. GOULET

A busy year for all of us, as usual!
Here are some highlights:

The number of students taking courses in Religious Studies increased again this year. For the first time, two students - Eric King and Carole-Anne Holmes - were selected by the 23 majors and minors in Religious Studies to represent them at our monthly departmental meetings.

Thanks to talented and enthusiastic students, our Open House display was especially appreciated for its warmth and attractiveness.

The majors, minors and faculty enjoyed a wonderful wine-cheese-and music party hosted by the Kings in Dartmouth.

The three full-time faculty members were regular participants in the meetings of the Halifax Association of Religious Studies Teachers (AST, Dal, M.S.V.U.)

Sister Elizabeth Bellefontaine became a consulting member of the university chaplaincy team this year, and even occasionally exercised her 'preaching' ability! Membership in professional associations usually takes Elizabeth to distant places: this year to Chicago for the annual meetings of the Catholic Biblical Association. She was also a member of the executive of the Faculty Association and of the Senate committee on Admissions and Scholarships.

Dr. Jacques Goulet further developed his community concern by functioning as a member of the M.S.V.U. Public Relations committee, the Nova Scotia Family Life Education Curriculum committee, and the Halifax CUSO selection committee. Besides attending the annual conference of the National Council on Family Relations in Toronto, Jacques participated in number of weeked seminars on family life education in Halifax, Church Point, Truro and New Waterford.

Father Barry Wheaton, the department chairman, spent much time this year organizing and implementing a new course entitled "Science/Technology and Religion," which might eventually develop into a full-scale interdisciplinary program. A member of Senate and of the Inter-University committee, Father Wheaton also taught a course at the Atlantic School of Theology, where he is a member of the Board of Govenors, the Senate, and the Curriculum committee. In his spare time, he also managed to produce a few more pieces of sculpture in wood.

SOCIOLOGY AND ANTHROPOLOGY

The Sociology-Anthropology Department had the following guest lecturers for various courses during the 1973-74 term:

Dr. Peter Clark, Dalhousie University
 Ms. Judy Giffin, Legal Aid Advisor
 Ms. Barbara Unroe, Director of UNISON
 Ms. Sylvia Hudson, Counsellor for Halifax County
 Mr. Goy Gould, Director of Indian Friendship Centre

Two sessions were held in the Art Gallery for the course, Canadian Indigenous People, with Sarain Stump, an Indian Artist, who discussed North American Indian Art and gave a talk on "Symbolism".

The Department set up a display of study material, an exhibition of Canadian Indian art and handicrafts, and arranged for films on Canadian Native people to be shown for the University Open Day.

In January, the students majoring in the Department sponsored the showing of the film "Ryan's Daughter", which was well attended. The members of the "Action committee are considering further film presentations.

A Department party was held on February 14, 1974, which proved to be a pleasant and informal evening.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE GRADUATES

PRESIDENT'S REPORT
AT THE FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL CONVOCATION
MOUNT SAINT VINCENT UNIVERSITY
SISTER MARY ALBERTUS, PH. D.

On behalf of the university community I should like to welcome you all to this forty-seventh convocation of Mount Saint Vincent University and to congratulate the graduates in whose honor we are assembled. The program at this time calls for the president's report and it has become the custom of late years to circulate this through INSIGHT, a university publication. As one who has come recently to the presidency, I should like to share with you some reflections on Mount Saint Vincent University.

In 1975 Mount Saint Vincent will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its being granted a charter. According to the calendar, it was founded to provide higher education for young women. This was in the days before emphasis on women's liberation and the feminine mystique. Perhaps the time has come for Mount Saint Vincent to reexamine its identity, to scrutinize its aims and objectives, to plan for its future growth and development. The university community has already manifested enthusiasm for embarking upon this study. Ever faithful to its commitment to serve the needs of women, it must provide research facilities to ascertain those needs and utilize its resources as an institution of higher learning to fulfill those needs.

In the presence of the graduating class our reflections naturally turn to the kind of education we hope they have received at Mount Saint Vincent University. We trust that you have developed a commitment to excellence in whatever sphere of human activity you may choose to spend your energies; that you come to perceive a hierarchy of values which form the basis of your decision making and your choices. It is to be hoped that in pursuit of the good, and true and the beautiful, you have come to appreciate what it means to be free, free from bias and prejudice, free to become what you have the potentiality to be. There are certain fruits which one has a right to expect from those who have received a liberal education: freedom to think, clearly and logically, freedom to communicate one's thoughts with clarity, style and grace.

As you go forth to live as citizens in a free country, I congratulate you on your achievements which we celebrate today and I wish you the peace, confidence and assurance which come from the realization that one is free to be and to become.

PRESIDENT-SISTER MARY ALBERTUS, Ph. D.

I am honoured and much moved by the degree that has been conferred upon me today. I assure you that I will try to live up to the fine traditions of Mount Saint Vincent University.

I congratulate those of you who have received academic degrees at this convocation. You should congratulate yourselves. You are justified in having a warm feeling of pride and satisfaction in what you have accomplished. After all, you have fulfilled a demanding assignment requiring discipline, application, patience and the use of intelligence. The parchment - the scroll - you have received today should mean a great deal to you because it is proof of what you have been able to do.

You are fortunate in having been able to attend Mount Saint Vincent University. For over a hundred years it has helped to bring the joys and rewards of learning to generations of students. It has given leadership in education, first as an academy for young women and now as a seat of learning for people of both sexes. From your professors you have learned how to use the instruments, the tools which can help you continue your studies and enrich your life during the years that lie ahead. The instruction you have received here has given you the foundation you need in order to build for personal fulfillment.

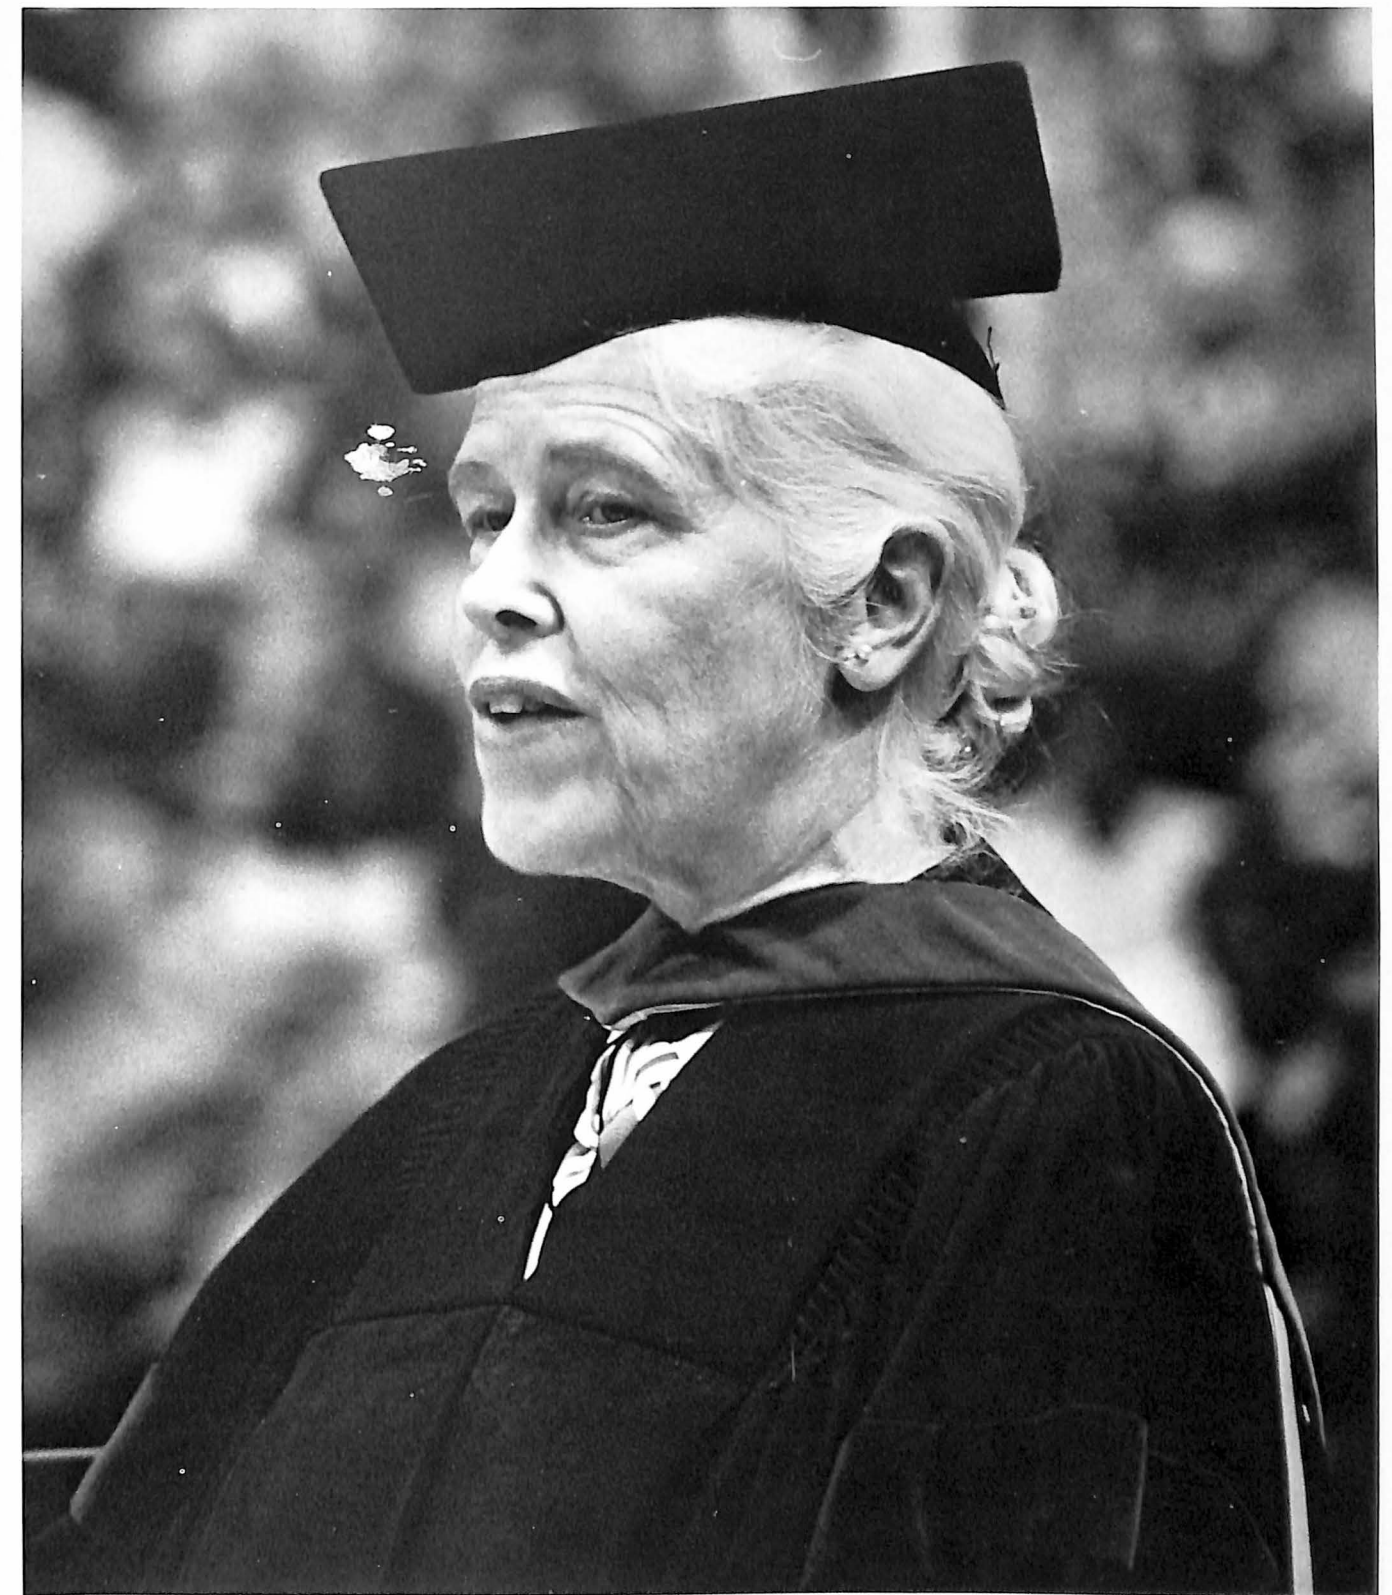

The women and men who have received degrees today are equally to be congratulated on not having been segregated, on having been able to work side by side as they will later in their families on their jobs and in society in general.

On a day like this I think it is important to realize that your education is in no way finished just because you have received a degree. On the contrary, it means that your education has made a good beginning. Education need not - indeed must not - ever be finished. It must flow on through an entire life like a river gathering depth and strength from the many tributaries that feed it.

No doubt some of you are looking forward to going back to school again when autumn comes, while others are planning to take a job for a while and work for a higher degree later on. Probably some of you feel that a job will provide the learning experience you want. One thing is certain. Whatever you do, the time you have spent here at Mount Saint Vincent will have given you a sound, solid base from which to launch yourselves into the future.

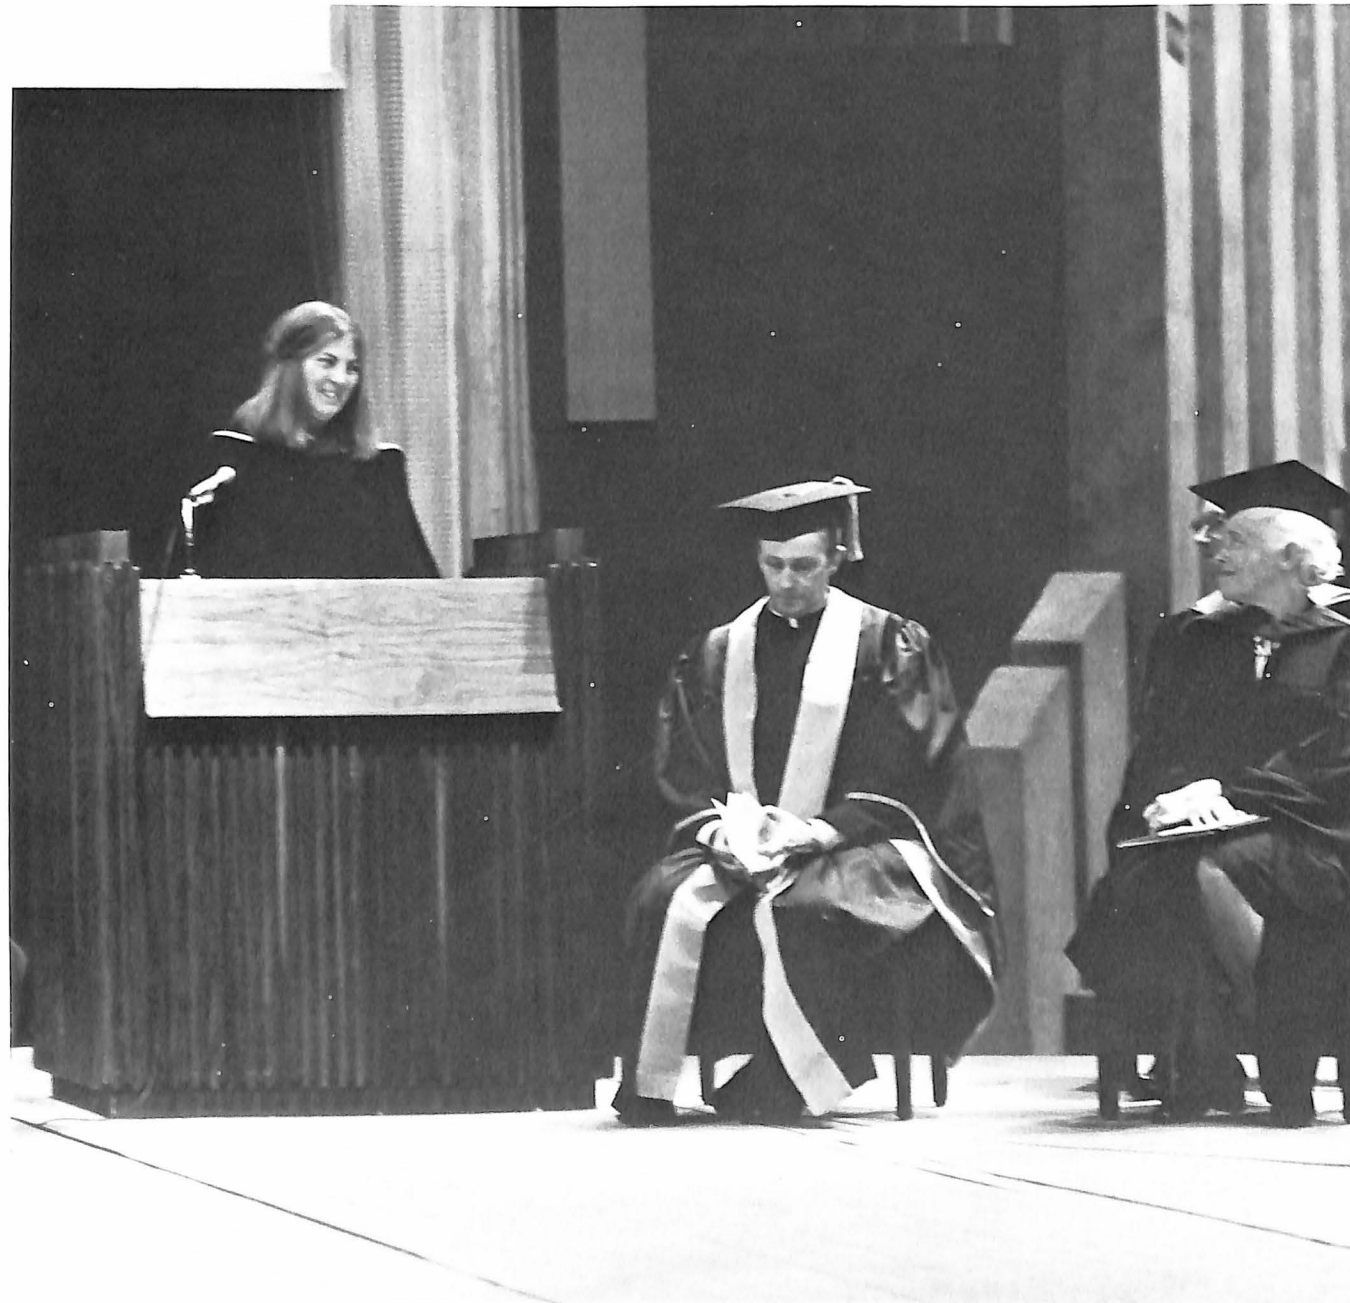

In conclusion. I have congratulated you on what you have accomplished. What then can I wish for your future? Well, if I were your godmother with a magic wand, I would wave it over you and give you these gifts for your tomorrows: An inquiring mind, so that you will always be searching for knowledge, in the hope that it may be crowned by wisdom. Belief in yourselves so that you will not falter. Eyes that turn outward toward others so that you may be able to understand them and so help them. Faith so that you will never be alone. And courage for the journey.

THIS NEW DAY

This brand-new day is mine to spend
Exactly as I choose --
To mark with real accomplishment
Or squander and misuse
To fill with love and cheerfulness
Or bitterness and pain --
It is MY choice to make this day
A total loss -- or gain.
So, counsel and direct me, Lord
That when this day shall end
I may rejoice at work well-done,
Be richer by a friend --
And when I sleep, may angels pause
Beside Your throne and tell
That I have lived this day of mine
Not wastefully -- but well!

EDITORS' MESSAGE

The editors and staff of the Yearbook 1974 would like to congratulate all the graduates. We hope that this Yearbook will help you to remember your years at Mount Saint Vincent and will in the future serve to bring back many fond memories.

The publication of a yearbook involved more problems than were anticipated but as each day passed the editors became more determined to complete the task. As the final supplement was on its way to the publishers a feeling of accomplishment came over the staff. Because the staff members were new at the job at creating a yearbook we hope that you will excuse any delays, mistakes, and oversights. However, at the same time, we wish you many enjoyable hours of reminiscing.

We appreciate the help we received and would like to send out special thanks to the following:

Mr. Tim Stevens, publisher's representative who inherited the job three quarters of the way through and then explained it to us.

Mrs. Dorothy West, Public Relations Office, who hardly passed a day without seeing us. Thank you for your help and encouragement.

Sister Mary Albertus, President, for her fast reply to our requests.

Mary Lou Brousseau, who was very helpful with the typing and mail.

Finally, we would like to thank the Patrons, Advertisers, and the Yearbook buyers, whose financial support made this Yearbook possible.

Marion & Debbie
