

McGill still a bastion of male dominance

MONTREAL (CUP)—Women have yet to gain a solid foothold in McGill's academic staff, according to statistics released by the university's Senate sub-committee on women. And it would appear the Students' Society is no better.

"These statistics are really depressing," said Women's Union member Paula Synowich. "McGill is a very traditional university. This is a university that at one time didn't accept women."

The study shows that the percentage of women professors has climbed very slightly in five years, from 16 per cent to 18 per cent. Synowich linked McGill's failure to improve the balance of the distribution of sexes on department staff to the attitudes prevalent in the society as a whole.

"It's a reflection of our society as much as our university," she said. "Society trains us to believe men are professors and academics (rather than women)."

Synowich had harsh words for the administration whom she said was "fucking up" in its hiring procedures. She also accused the Students' Society of being sexist in its hiring procedures.

"(The fact that) the three executives are men and all the secretaries are women is significant," said Synowich.

Students' Society president Liz Norman, agreed that the University had neglected

Nobel Peace prize winner takes stand on role of church

by Patricia Gillis
Staff Reporter

"The church doesn't work for the people, it works with the people," said Aldolfo Perez Esquivel at a lecture given at the Mount last week.

Perez, the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize winner, centered his talk around the role of the church in Latin America.

The first topic he spoke on was "Hope". He talked about the church, the poor, the people, illiteracy, and spiritual and physical commitment to the church.

He told of the martyrs in Latin America, many of whom give up their lives daily at the chance of seeing some change for the better in Latin America. He said these martyrs consisted of Compasinos, Workers, Peasants, Sisters, Brothers, etc.

He changed his topic to the economic problems of the communistic controlled Latin America, where the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. He made a point of discussing the National Security, an organization which says it is on the side of the Christians, but yet kills and tortures so many of these Christians everyday.

The introduction given for Perez, stated that he started his career in the 1960's in Argentina. In 1971 he developed an interest in the topic of human rights in Latin America, and had an outspoken criticism of the Argentinian Government. In 1974 he was arrested (not for the first time) in regard to politics. During the year of 1977, he was again arrested and spent fourteen months in prison. There, he saw first hand, many tortures and beatings.

As Perez concluded his talk, he took a sip of water, and then said, "I could go on and on, but I don't want to tire out my poor translator. Thank you very much for listening."

The lecture ended in a question and answer period which was followed by coffee and cakes from Latin America, in the M.S.V.U. art gallery.

The Canadian federation of students is born

OTTAWA (CUP)—On the eve of Federal government plans to reduce funding for post-secondary education, the Canadian student movement has merged into a new structure with a new name.

More than 130 delegates at a five-day conference of the National Union of Students (NUS) and the Association of Student Councils (AOSC) held the founding plenary of the Canadian Federation of Students October 14. CFS Officially unites NUS, the political-lobbying organization, with AOSC, a student services group. The new Federation will also incorporate most of the provincial level student organizations, and each student council will participate in all levels through a single membership in CFS.

"The need has never been greater," said Mike McNeil, chairperson of the CFS Executive, at the opening plenary. McNeil said the activities of the new coalition in the next six months will shape the role of post-secondary education for students in the coming years.

The conference followed a year of preparation for the merging of the two national organizations, after members of both voted to rid themselves of the overlap between the separate bodies. NUS and AOSC had shared conferences and resources throughout the past nine years.

The membership of each student union in CFS must be approved by students voting in referendum on each campus. Full members will pay a $4 per student membership fee each year to the Federation. John Doherty, Executive Officer of CFS, said student unions may become prospective members through a council vote, but must hold a campus referendum on full membership within three years.

"After five years," said Martha Elliott, CFS Internal Coordinator, "People are firming up their commitment to build a unified student movement."

The CFS plenary opened the conference, held at Carleton University, but both NUS and AOSC will continue to exist until all members pass referendum for CFS membership.

Since January, more than 100,000 students have voted in referenda to become CFS members. St. Mary's University in Halifax and Carleton University were among the first of the current thirteen full member campuses to join.

About 30 student councils have voted to become prospective members in CFS, at a fee of $1 per student.

The new organization will include as provincial "components" the Students' Union of Nova Scotia, the Ontario Federation of Students, the Saskatchewan Federation of Students (now CFS-Saskatchewan), the Federation of Alberta Students and the B.C. Students' Federation. Each provincial body will have its own policy-making autonomy, through provincial plenaries.

CFS operations will continue with the six full-time staff structure of NUS, with plans to make the position of chairperson and treasurer full-time when finances permit. Currently these are not paid positions.

The services organization, formerly AOSC, becomes CFS-Services. The group operates a student-owned travel service, Travel Cuts, and distributes International Student Identity cards, which provide holders with discounts in retail stores.

CFS delegates approved a three-point campaign, pushing their demand that the government halt its plans to reduce by up to $2 billion, the amount paid to the provinces for social services and higher education. They urged that the current Canada Student Loans system be replaced by an all-grants system, that CFS says could be afforded if tax credits for education were adjusted. The CFS campaign also calls for a public inquiry into "the role and place of post-secondary education in Canada." The inquiry, they say, should include representation from all sectors of the university communities.

Halifax YMCA Salutes I.Y.D.P.

On November 16th, 1981 the Halifax YMCA is going to offer its members, participants and volunteers a new and exciting experience. On that day only, every person who enters the "Y" complex on South Park St. will be assigned a "disability" with which they will participate in their usual activity.

The objectives of this awareness programme, entitled "Obstacles", are to provide a broader information base about the disabled, to develop empathy for the disabled condition and to motivate people to action.

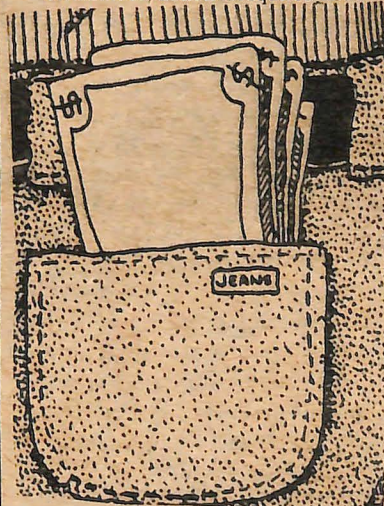

There will be no interruption of regular "Y" programmes; however, each will be conducted within the "disability simulation" design.

Professional staff people are giving careful study to the project to ensure that all activities are orchestrated in a safe, positive and educational manner. Quality leadership will be provided.

Speakers, displays and other special events will be happening for those who wish to gain more knowledge in this area.

The most serious obstacles disabled persons encounter are caused by the attitudes of other people. If this condition is to change, your help is needed. All "Y" members and volunteers as well as interested people are encouraged to attend.

Remember, action is required now!

Reading Tutors Needed

Volunteer tutors are needed at the North End Branch Library, 2285 Gottingen Street for the Reading Support Program to help children who are trying to improve their reading skills.

The Reading Support Program is a free service designed to assist community children experiencing reading difficulties. The program links a student with a volunteer at the North Branch for one or two hours a week throughout the school year.

The objective of the program is to provide a regular opportunity for the student to practice reading skills and to see reading as a pleasurable activity.

Volunteers may be senior citizens, parents, working people, housewives or students. The minimum age requirement is 16 years. The role of the volunteer is to offer an encouraging ear while providing a relaxed and calm atmosphere. Patience, warmth and interest are the personal qualities being looked for. Volunteers will be given an orientation which will deal with the philosophy and practical aspects of the program. Each volunteer should be able to work with one child for one hour once or twice a week in the library. An area in the library will be set aside for volunteers to keep records of their work, reading materials and games. Volunteers will be responsible to the professional staff of the North Branch Library who will be available to provide advice and assistance.

Students needing this reading help are in grade 3-9 and are selected in consultation with local schools. The program runs from October to June. New students and volunteers are, however, accepted throughout the school year, provided the program is not full.

If you are interested in working as a volunteer or would like more information call the Branch Librarian Susan MacLean at 426-6987 or 426-6988.

Dal council approves gears strip show

HALIFAX (CUP)—A recent strip show, organized by the engineering students society at Dalhousie University, has been attacked by members of the university community.

The society topped off a "beer garden" held in the student union building October 8, with a chorus of female strippers. The society had not mentioned their plan in a letter to building manager Murdoch Ryan, requesting the use of building facilities.

Several campus groups were angered that the event had been held in the council-controlled student union building.

David McCann, co-chairperson of the Newman Society, a campus Christian group which attempts each year to block the engineers from having strippers in the union building, was incensed that the council endorsed the event. Councillors had approved the show in a telephone vote held shortly before the beer bash. Twenty-one council members supported the event, with six opposed.

The show was supported despite the society's neglect in not listing the strip show on its program for the night.

McCann criticized the council's actions as irresponsible and precedent setting.

"Any society can send a phony letter and then do what they want," he said.

A petition circulated by the Newman Society last year opposing the use of the student union building for strip acts, gathered the signatures of ten per cent of Dalhousie students. McCann said it wouldn't be repeated, since "we know how students think on the matter."

The engineering society executive said the event was "closed", and publicity was limited. It was responsibly controlled, with tight door security, and when people jumped onto the stage, they were quickly pushed back, said Kevin Reardon, a society executive. There was no illegal or "extracurricular" activity, he said.

"If you compare our events to other events on campus, this is baby stuff," said another society executive.

The strip show was organized as a way to dispel apathy, according to some society members.

"People overestimate why we want to have strippers," said Bob Maloney, an engineering student. "It's not just to see nude females, but is a way to get first year engineers involved."

Delphine duToit, executive director of the Dalhousie Staff Association, was "disappointed council would have that kind of attitude for an event that exploits women." The DSA represents non-academic staff at the university and 75 per cent of its members are women.

"With the incidence of rapes on campus, and the administration's efforts to work against this danger by distributing pamphlets educating people on how to guard against rape, this condoning of strippers is especially disturbing," she said.

duToit linked the hiring of strippers to rape. "One is directly an act of violence against women, a power thing, which is similar to a strip show, where the stripper is in a subordinate position to the audience," she said. "This marks clearly the relationship between men and women."

Jim Logan, a student union vice-president, said he voted for the engineers being allowed to hold the strip show.

"As long as it's legal, council shouldn't ban things like that. It's a clear question of whether we have the right or not to let them do it. It might be sexist but it's not up to (council). It's their choice, not ours," he said.

"Also, I don't want to alienate the engineers. I hope that they will slide back into council instead of being out in left field."

Report recommends 12% increase for 1981-82

HALIFAX (CUP)—A 12 per cent increase in operating grants to maritime universities and colleges is being called for by an advisory commission report released recently.

The annual report of the Maritime Provinces Higher Education Commission (MPHEC) details the activities and goals of the commission during the 1980-81 academic year.

The commission was originally set up in 1974 to assist the three provinces in "attaining a more efficient and effective utilization and allocation of resources in the field of higher education."

Increases in enrolment are not expected to last much longer, according to the report which recommends that governments maintain an adequate funding level to preserve the present day standards.

Last year the commission recommended funding increases of 11.6 per cent and was pleased to see the government follow through on awarding them to universities.

Also highlighted in the report were observances on and recommendations for more programmes tailored to meet local needs for the future. Such programmes would come in areas such as food sciences, computer science, communications, psychology, special education, gerontology, tourism and marine resources.

The shift away from the liberal arts programmes continued 1st year, accounting for only 27.5 per cent of those enrolled as opposed to 40 per cent twenty years ago.

The commission also calls for more co-ordination in the field of research between the universities, government and industry. During 1980 research accounted for a meagre $19.1 million.

Last year the commission recommended improvements in student aid programmes until the Federal-Provincial Task Force on Student Aid was completed. It was pleased with increases in bursary ceilings from $1,200 to $1,700 and urged governments to take other steps to improve student aid.

The commission concluded that despite the predicted hardships of upcoming years, the increased co-operation among all those involved in post-secondary education will serve the region in adapting to the changes that lie ahead.

If ever there was a solution

If ever there was a solution, to the problems a paper must face, I'd give my left arm and five dollars, and two months free advertising space. To have placed in front of me promptly, a guide that would say all in fun, Here's the simple solution to the problem of "How To Please Everyone"

For you see in the course of my ventures, there have many a question been raised, As to why, how, and who should be critically crossed and why, how, and who should be praised. This of course is a job of our paper, to report on all things being done, be it sports, council capers, or political vapors, be it alumnae, elevators, or nuns.

Now I won't babble on for eternity, 'cause for poetic genius I'm lacking, But I'm here to defend our fraternity that we've pledged our allegiance to backing. Where we spend many hours of trial and torment and at last produce what you've come to know, as that horribly wonderful Mount student newsrag the one and only "Picaro".

If you find that you hate what we're doing, and you can't stand to read one more letter, than kindly be critical and tell us, and maybe things will get better. Better yet, join our forces and offer, some encouraging support for our staffers, but don't curse us and condemn our actions, if you can't offer anything better.

We've found it's an age-old dilemma, when you attempt to make everyone happy, and you end up with nothing but trouble, and a paper that really looks crappy. And so with that in mind, and with all that I've said I'll sign off with a message worth rating. If you can't offer more than a nasty score take a dip, the toilet is waiting.

crawl back into your time machine

To the Unknown Columnist:

You bird-brained bastard! narcissistic ninny! reincarnated refugee from Berkley! SPARE US! Fade out, flower-child—crawl back into your time machine and ask to be let out in the present decade before your Editor has to put you out with the rest of the garbage and other, out-dated decayed matter. As for desperate women—if what you have in your pants is equal to what you have in your head, you couldn't elicit a sexual response outside of Stonehenge—live, breathing earthy females respond to brains which means that you are destined to go through life lacking something. Mercifully, you aren't smart enough to know exactly what.

Apologies to Birches 2

To the Birches,

In reference to Thursday night's incident: Some people in the Birches seem to think that it was a mindless joke to scare anyone within earshot. Well I would like to inform you that it was harmless "contest" to relieve some tension between two people who did not realize their window was open and that they could be heard so plainly. The consequences were certainly not anticipated, so for those who were frightened and put out, sincere apologies are extended.

With many apologies and much regret;
"Forever Quiet!"

No more garbage, please

To the Editor,

This letter is in reference to the credibility degrading article you ran last week called the "unknown Column". It is an unfortunate piece of garbage cluttering up the pages of the Picaro.

Is this what I am paying a large chunk of my student fees towards? Do I have to relegate this rag to the use it was put last year, ie. lining my bird cage? (If I had a bird that's where this issue would go.)

I realize the intent of the article was to stir up shit and that it has very effectively done. However, I feel the paper would be worth reading if the tendency was to critical analysis of real issue instead of hiding poor analysis of issues among four letter words and crazed drug talk.

And about the Unknown Columnist: Does he or she not even have the guts to sign their name to their work. If the reason is to hide the identity of the author, then I think the author should confess to the composition of such trash and submit him/herself to the lynching mob which is only to eager to find the identity of this person who is ruining the hard work of everyone else on the paper. By the way, I was probably one of the few people who read the rest of the paper after reading the column. Unfortunately a lot of people missed out on a lot of good news coverage this week because all they could see was red after reading the column.

The Unknown Student

We'll jump at your throat, not a flagpole!

To the Editor,

As a student of the Mount, I am concerned with the quality of the unknown column in particular, and of the Picaro in general.

I find it disturbing to have trash such as this represent a university that I am proud of. The unprofessionalism and crudeness is downright degrading to M.S.V.U.

I take exception to the entire column, but I find a few phrases particularly offensive. I and a good many of my friends will jump not at the "flagpole" in your pants, unknown columnist, but at your throat.

I challenge you to come out from behind your cowardly disguise (for I know who you are) and show yourself for the truly sick person that you are.

In my opinion, if the Picaro continues to print such garbage, it can cease being the representative newspaper for M.S.V.U., for a good many people are no longer behind it.

As a final plea, I ask the Picaro to give professional quality representation or none at all.

Note: This letter was slipped under the door of the Production Manager unsigned. The paper has decided to carry the letter as it is not libelous to the author. However, all letters should be signed, and names will be withheld only by request.

To the Editor:

I was sitting here in Assisi (contemplating doing an essay of 3000 words, due in the day after tomorrow) when my eyes lit upon the most recent issue of "The Picaro". It had already served it's purpose of flyswatter and was headed for the wastepaper basket when I thought "Oh shit, I might as well read it," you see I'm always up for a new experience.

To get to the point, I soon found myself devouring the "Unknown Column". I thought "This is vulgar, this is disgusting, this is great!" So I voice my hope that we will see more of this kind of journalism in our esteemed paper in the future. I also extend to the Unknown Columnist an invitation to join me at some unnamed time, in some unrestricted place, to do some uninhibiting drugs and have some unusual sex.

Unconditionally Yours

cut out the garbage

To the Editor:

In response to the Unknown Column by the Unknown Columnist that appeared in the October 20th issue. I must say that I along with many other students on campus was shocked at the content of the column that was actually printed. Up until this point I had felt that those involved in the PICARO were doing an excellent job on producing a neutral and unoffending paper, but much to my dismay I hate to say you've slipped back into the old form again.

Not only was I shocked but so were many other students at the four and five letter words that were printed along with many other descriptive words. I personally took offence to the statement about the tiny cubbyhole of an office that the PICARO was forced into this year, because that used to be my office and I was forced out because the PICARO lost their previous office. If you want to see a cubbyhole come and see me and I will gladly show you a cubbyhole that we the JANUS yearbook were forced into because of the PICARO.

Yes, I guess it's true that we all have our complaints but I feel that being in the publishing business you should be very careful about the content of the newspaper and go back to the good quality you started the year with. You are probably thinking what kind of prude is this girl, but stop and think how you would feel if I as yearbook co-editor printed such things. Would you like to look back and read things like that when you remember your years at the Mount.

In closing, stop and consider all those on campus that you are offending, and go back to publishing the good quality material you started the year with.

MCGILL STILL MALE DOMINATED

women in hiring noting "its symptomatic perhaps of the entire society and its approach to women asserting themselves."

Norman differentiated between attaining her position and the university staff.

"It's a totally different situation. Mine is an elected position, whereas they are hired differently (by each department)," she said.

"It may be that the percentage of the women candidates is so small that only one-fifth of the applicants are women. But it's not just the educational system, it's the entire society (that's at fault)," she said.

"One should think about an eventual balance (of the sexes) when voting for (professorial) candidates," she said.

Synowich would be against the principle of a quota system as would Norman who said "women only" ads would also be sexist.

Synowich noted that 65 per cent of the non-academic staff are women including over 90 per cent of the clerical workers.

"Most of the unionized (non-academic) staff are men and they're a lot more secure in their jobs. When the cutbacks hit us a lot of clerical jobs will be gone and they tend to be women's jobs," she said.

Cuts from Council

Positions still to fill

The appointed positions of Winter Carnival Chairperson(s) and CUSO representative and the elected position of Senior Class President are still vacant and council is making an effort over the next few weeks to have those positions filled. The absence of a Winter Carnival Chair could be disastrous to the existence of a Winter Carnival this year if the position is not filled soon. Carnival traditionally takes place near the end of January.

Voter turnout

Voter turnout for last week's council election was 22.6%, considerably less than the turnout for last spring's election but slightly higher than the average for fall elections.

Wednesday night pubs

Council passed a motion at last week's meeting that Wednesday nights at Vinnie's pub would continue to be the domain of fund raising for the entertainment committee, but that any society wishing to have a fund raiser could book the pub for another evening of the week under the guidelines already established for booking Vinnie's.

Pub Committee re-established

A pub committee set up last year to look into the feasibility of opening a pub on campus and plans to set it up, will be re-established this year by council as an advisory board to the operations of the pub.

Also an ad-hoc committee, consisting of three councillors and three students at large will be set up to make recommendations about improving/changing the atmosphere of Vinnie's, monitoring and passing on any complaints/compliments of students, and generally discussing the pub and its place in student life.
