President's Message

You have lived always in a world of change. You have seen what change has done to our world, to our scientific, intellectual and even our spiritual values. You have lived through many changes at the Mount in your years here and you have changed yourselves, more perhaps than you know.

I hope that the Mount has helped make you the kind of person who will be at home in the kind of world you will have to live in - with a reverence for unchanging human and moral values, but open to new thoughts and able to grow into new values.

We have tried to make you aware of your own value as a human person and particularly as a woman. Although as a woman you will find doors not yet fully opened to you, your opportunity to grow and serve is greater than that of any women in the past.

You will carry the burden, as well as the joy, of your education, throughout your life. Education is still a privilege denied to many. It demands payment in excellence and service. I hope that you will make the payment willingly.

Sister Catherine Wallace

Sister Catherine Wallace

Student Council President

We are now "educated." How little we know, what little we have thought about, how few answers we have found, we have still to learn. We have been led to believe that we would "know" when we were "educated", yet here we are, and what do we know? We know this world has only one constant: change. And that is our challenge: to remain open to change, to always learn, to always seek a new and better world. How each of us respond to this challenge will revolve around how our individual lives are directed. Yet, however we choose to arrange our private lives, I would hope that there will always be a commitment to the world around us--else why all this furor over education to "enrich individual experience," and "to develop society"?

We are the fortunate, yet in our lives somehow on the periphery there are always the "others." Our task must be to live lives which include all around us. Our concern must not be abstracted to the donations to charity type, but must be personal and daily. One need not go to underdeveloped countries to find poverty, unhappiness, alienation; we need only to look around us--to people. For when we speak of commitment to the world, what do we speak of but a commitment to people, to each other. The world is a wonder-full place, if you live in it.

diverse links."

Judith Anne Oakley, B.A., Bus. Econ.
Halifax, Nova Scotia
"A little inaccuracy sometimes saves tons of explanation."

Mary Susan Penny, B.A., Bus. Econ.
Halifax, Nova Scotia
"Life is an end in itself and the only question to whether it is worth living is whether you have enough of it."

Yvonne Marie Taylor, B.A., Bus. Econ.
Edmonton, Alberta
"You see things as they are and you ask
'Why?'. But I dream things that never were and I ask 'Why not?'"

Annette Louise Deveau, B.Sc.
Halifax, Nova Scotia
"If everybody minded their own business"
said the Duchess in a hoarse growl,
"the world would go around a deal faster than it does."

Mary Christina Farmer, B.Sc.
Dartmouth, Nova Scotia
"Speech is civilization itself: the word, even the most contradictory word preserves contact--it is silence which isolates."

Science

Suzanne Margaret Bailly, B.Sc.
Lunenburg, Nova Scotia
"To reach the port of success we must sometimes sail with the wind and sometimes against it, but we must sail and not drift nor lie at anchor."
